FOR TOMORROW

IT IS certain that to the present high school generation will fall the responsibility of actually making the greatest contribution to the new world after this war. How fine a world this will be, how much profit will be realized from the experiences and heartaches of the present war, how sound and sturdy will be the restored peace which must be maintained, will depend largely on the principles and motives of those who are to be the rebuilders. Since the present-day high school students are to be among these, it is imperative that they prepare themselves fully for the mammoth task ahead.

The Catholic high school girl is given solid principles upon which to build. She must learn these well and understand them thoroughly so that she can apply them to the problems confronting her.

GIRLS' HIGH SCHOOL

We Have One Source Of Inspiration!

ANY modern American high school provides a splendid course of study and extra-curricular activities such as debating, school publications, musical opportunities, and a wide variety of sports. Here at Hallahan, however, along with an extensive curriculum as well as a varied activities program, is found the basic foundation of all these things—religion. The Catholic high school girl is trained so that when she receives her diploma on her graduation day, she should be able to make this world a better, happier place for her having lived in it. This is because she has been educated with a religious background in a Catholic school.

In the ensuing pages of this book will be shown the Hallahan student both at work and at play, in serious and gay moods. Yet throughout, as the very core of her activity, will be found basic Catholic training.

As the student or graduate reads this book, she will be reminded of the pleasures of happy days in school. Through this publication will be found many traces of the firm religious fibre that should fit a young woman for any career she chooses to elect.

After graduation what? Much is to be done; grave problems must be faced and solved. The times are difficult, fraught with uncertainty and clouded by war. The Catholic graduate does not leave her school without having been fortified and enriched. Behind her economic, political, and social problems will be found a philosophy that will work if she is Catholic enough to make it work.

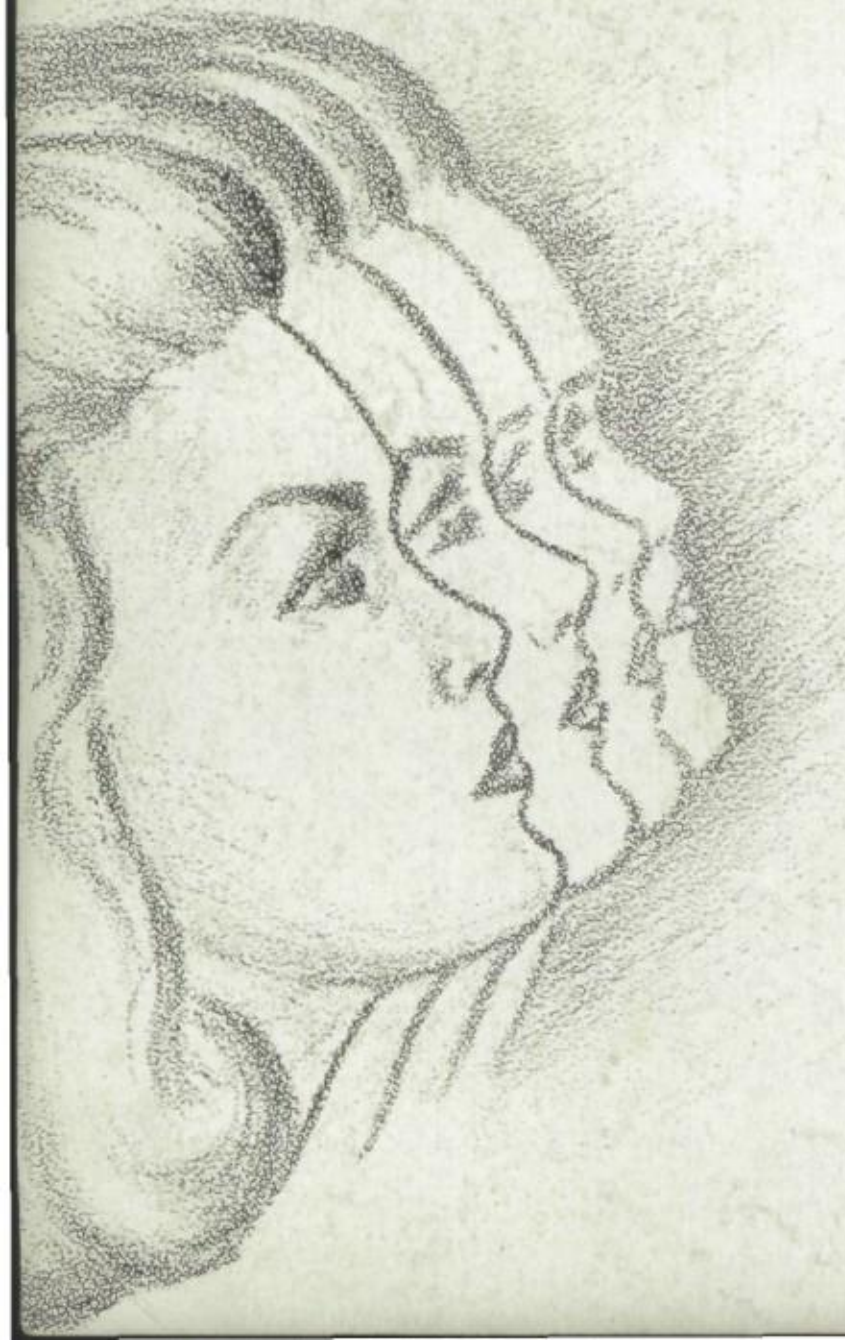

To The Class of '43 We Say

This book is dedicated to those members of '43 who will have the courage to put into daily life the philosophy which this school has given them. It is a salute to those courageous graduates who will wear their religion as a shield before their hearts. It is a tribute to those who in that faith will help build the new world that the spirit and sacrifice of America is winning.

To such among you this book is dedicated. May its memories grow dearer with the years and its lessons sustain and inspire you through the tests that lie ahead.

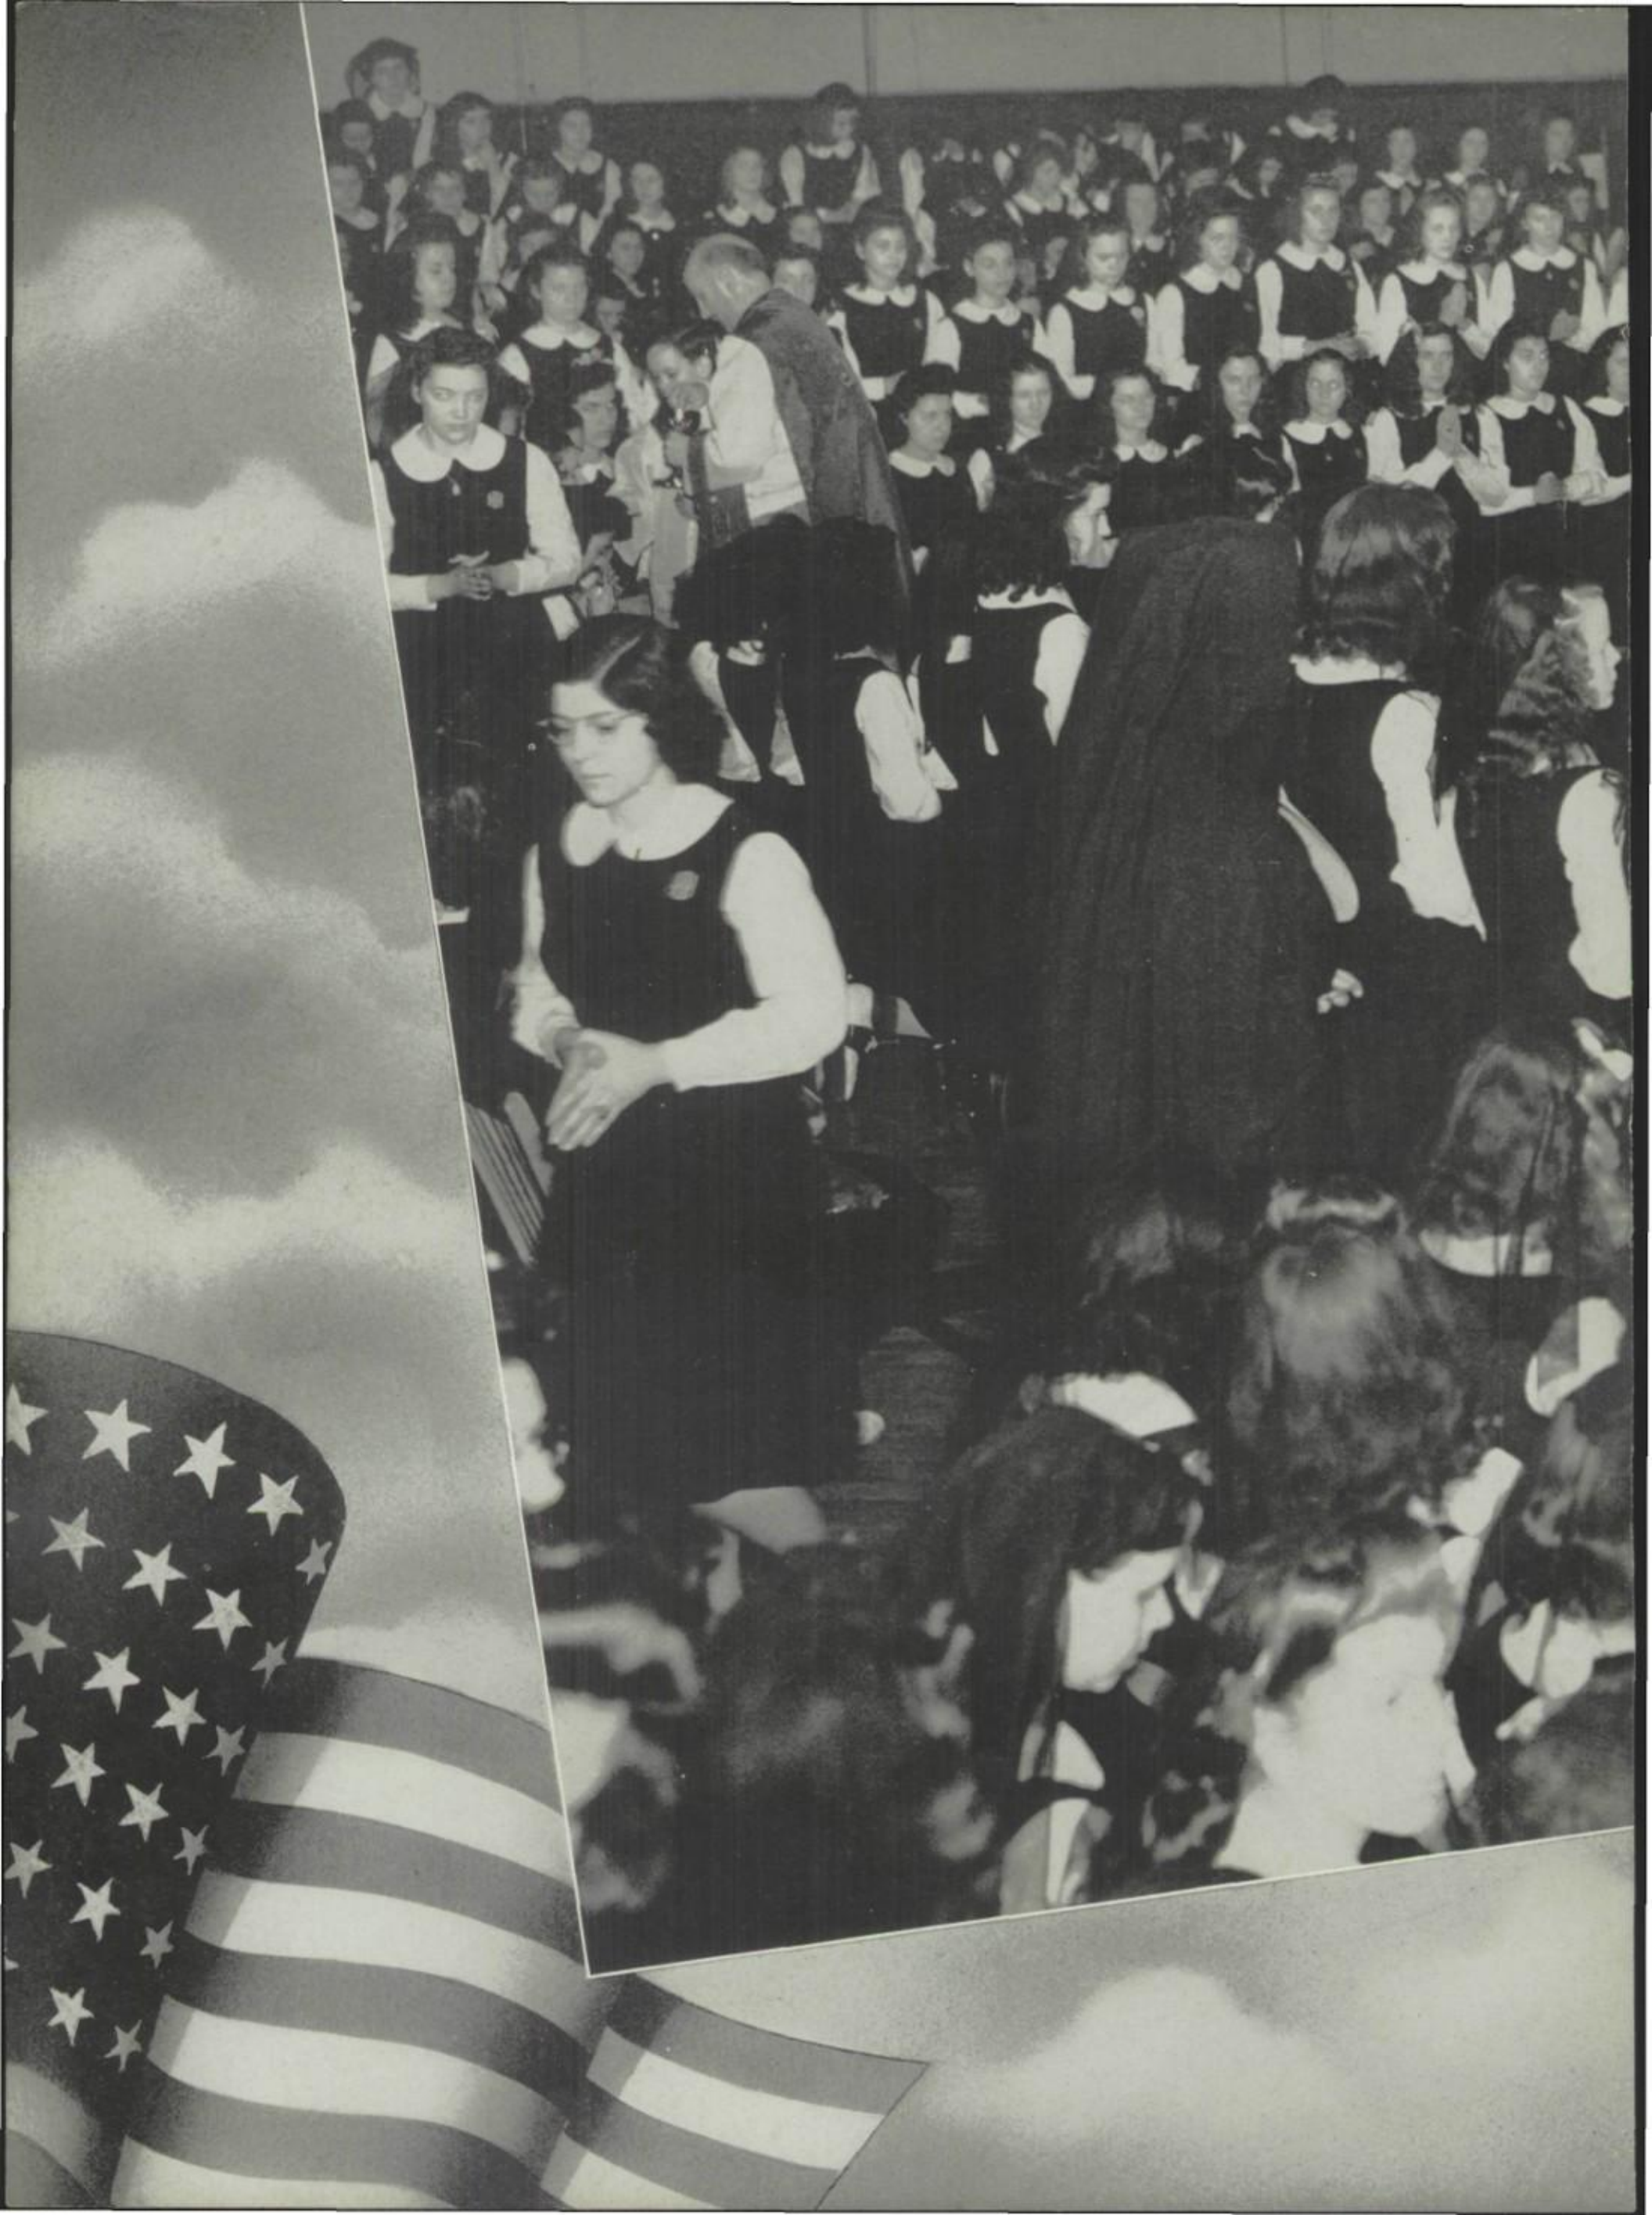

At Nineteenth And Wood

HALLAHAN is the oldest of the Philadelphia diocesan high schools for girls, but its spirit is young and vibrant. Founded in 1912, it is the only one of the Catholic girls' high schools to have taken part in the activities imposed by the First World War. For the second time it has met generously the responsibilities and tasks of a national crisis and has yet endeavored to fit its students to serve the future.

The light of our lamp, emblazoned upon our school seal, symbolizes the faith in which we trust. It signifies also the light toward which the world looks, today as never before.

WE LEARN

St. Peter's Is Hallahan's Annex . . .

Below we see our little sisters in various activities. Sophomores A. Lamina, C. Milligan and C. Munn are neck deep in Geometry. Five freshmen are more interested in scrapbooks. At the bottom, the Annex Glee Club is assisted by Mildred Cromwell and Mary Monroe.

Next we note Margaret Mahoney placing her vote for Student Government. Jean Donnelly, Mary McGovern, and Margaret Friel are shown in the midst of a pamphlet array. Below that, is the Annex Band. Inset, P. Duffy, M. Christie, and M. Kranish help the War Bond Drive.

But It Is One In Its Spirit

St. Peter's, located at Fifth and Girard, has been a symbol of the true spirit of Hallahan ideals. For the past seven years, St. Peter's has not been merely a shadow of Hallahan, but another Hallahan. The student body numbers over six hundred girls of eager and cooperative spirit.

Sister Mary Franciline, O.S.F., Prefect; Sister Agnes Gertrude, O.S.F., Mathematics; Sister Angelita, S.S.N.D., Mathematics; Sister Angelus, S.S.N.D., Latin.

Sister Benedict Mary, S.M., Latin; Sister Clarella, S.S.N.D., Latin; Sister Francis Irma, S.S.J., English; Sister Irenaeus, S.S.J., Music.

Sister M. Lucinda, O.S.F., Science; Sister Mary of Good Counsel, S.S.J., English; Sister Mary Victor, O.S.F., Science; Sister Paul Marie, S.S.J., Art.

Sister Rita Catherine, O.S.F., Mathematics; Sister Rita Patricia, S.S.J., French; Sister Rosemary, S.M., History; Sister M. Vincentine, O.S.F., History.

Sister Virginella, S.S.J., English; Sister St. Vivian, S.S.J., History; Sister Winifreda, S.S.J., English.

A Career Begins At Hallahan

The freshman represents one from the 105 schools contributing to Hallahan. At first she is lost in the crowd in a new and bewildering place called high school. From the start, though, in spite of the difficulties of adjustment, she wants to belong. From the first day, too, teachers and the spirited students of her school stand ready, eager to show the newcomer the way to happy days at Hallahan.

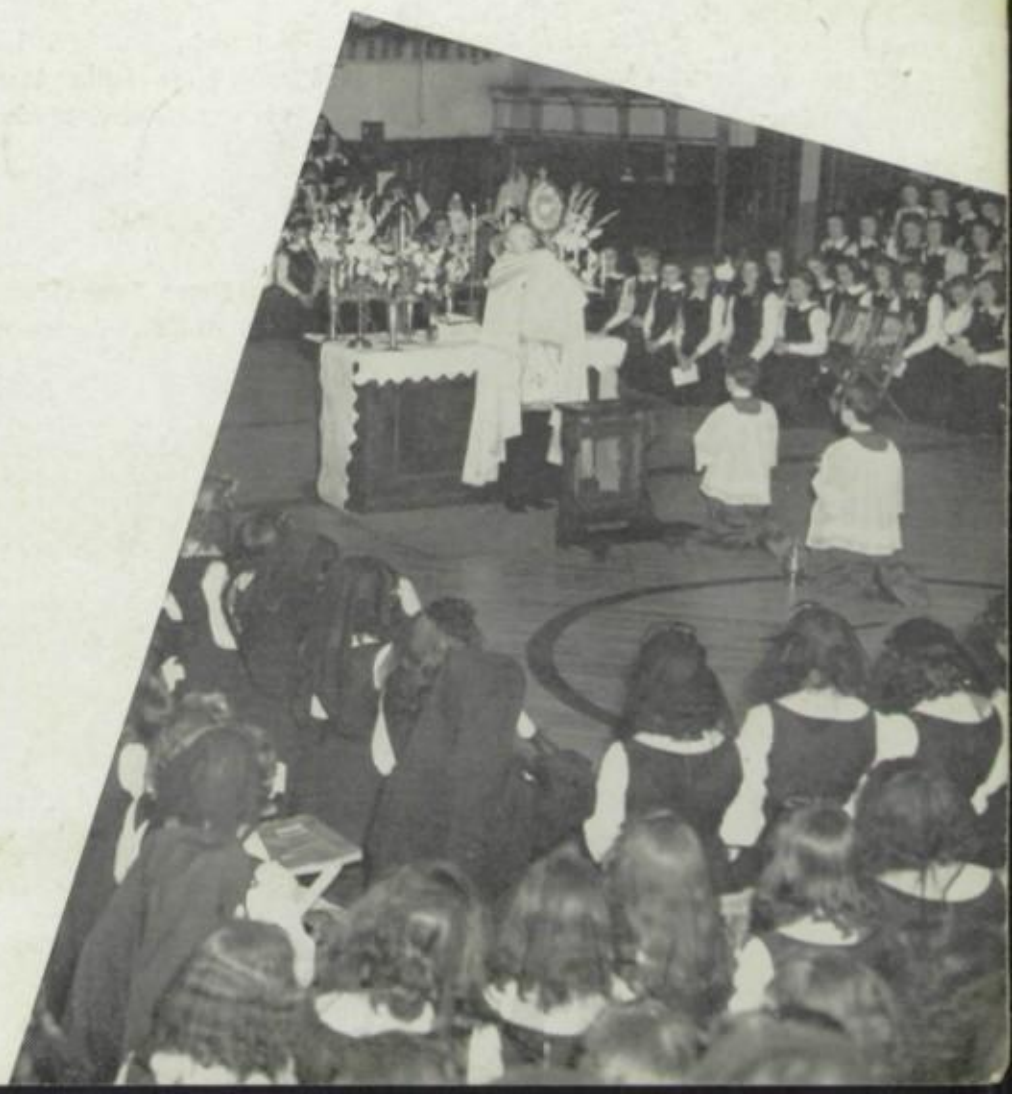

. . . In Catholic Education

The duties of Monsignor Bonner and his assistants are not limited to administrative activities. Because of their interest in our spiritual well-being, they take on other important functions as part of their routine. At least once a week Mass is celebrated in each of the various Catholic girls' high schools. The annual retreats given during Holy Week present further opportunities for the expenditure of their zeal demonstrated in all that makes for Catholicity.

Freshmen Meet the Faculty

Sister Mary Adele, I.H.M., Principal and Prefect of Studies; Sister Carmelita, O.S.F., Prefect of Discipline; Mother Mary Gonzaga, S.H.C.J., Prefect of Supplies; Sister Francis Inés,

S.S.J., Prefect of Activities; Sister Mary Grace, S.M., Prefect of Guidance; Sister Agnes Alacoque, S.S.J., Religion; Sister Agnes Anita, S.S.J., Music.

Industrious freshmen start out their high school careers with full and interesting rosters. Eager to acquire the use of a language other than their mother tongue, quite a few delve into the fascinating but tongue-twisting study of Latin or French. Others among them seek the cultural still further through the study of music, with the hope of some day taking a part in the orchestra or band.

Sister Agnes Christi, S.S.J., Religion; Sister Agnes Francis, S.S.J., English; Sister Alice Cecilia, O.S.F., Commercial;

Sister Alice Patrice, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Alma Joseph, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Aloysia Maria, I.H.M., Mathematics; Sister Alphonsa, I.H.M., Clothing.

This Religion class seems to be a very inspiring group as we can see from the seriousness of Angeline Lavalla, Betty Pfeiffer, Josephine De Lucia and Mary Boles.

The study of literature is new to the Freshmen English students. Joanna Basetti can be seen reading notes, while Mary Dolores Hayes appears very interested.

In this Freshman Art class, we have evidences of future Da Vinci's by their many successful attempts.

Dynamic Force . . .

Superintendent of Schools of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia

NEWCOMERS to Hallahan realize early that behind the activities of this great school there is an administration that really "clicks." We point with pride to the head of this smoothly functioning organization, the Right Reverend Monsignor John J. Bonner, D.D. Monsignor's ability, foresight, and able leadership have made our alma mater one of the foremost educational institutions of the present day in scholastic as well as in cultural aspects.

Monsignor is aided in his duties as administrator of the Catholic high schools and also in his position as Diocesan Superintendent of Schools by the very capable Reverend Joseph G. Cox, J.C.D., and Reverend Joseph A. Gorham, S.T.L.

The faculty is composed of members of five different religious communities, all of which are highly proficient in the various departments of education which they teach.

To our splendid administrators and devoted teachers is due in a large measure the Hallahan tradition of which each student is so proud.

Orientation Requires A Little Time

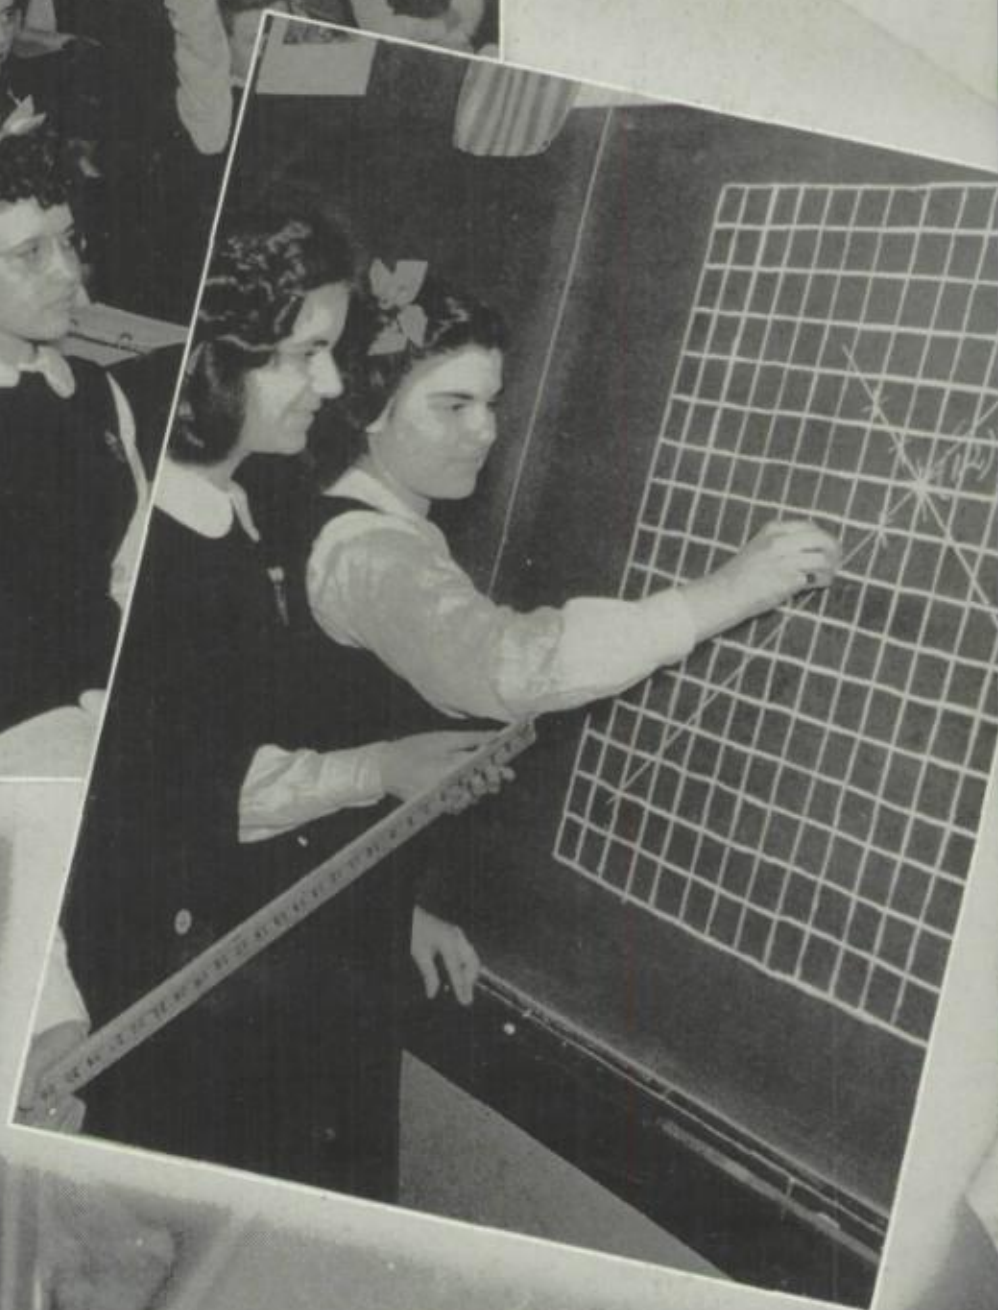

"Well begun is half done." Marie Mazzeo, typical of all eager freshmen, receives her roster of subjects carefully chosen with the aid of a capable faculty member.

A new experience for a freshman—a locker all her own! Patricia Tighe deciphers the riddle of the combination for Rita Gottinella, instructing her in locker regulations.

Very happy, very proud, a little frightened, greatly bewildered especially about traffic rules—is a perfect description of Hallahan's freshmen. Patricia Tighe directs a group of anxious beginners to the auditorium to await homerooms.

The Freshmen become acquainted with a new phase of math. Here we can see Rose D'Adamo writing at the board, while Rita C. Cianciarulo holds the ruler in place. Algebra prepares the way for the higher forms of math.

Africa, so prominent today, is important history to the tiny freshmen. Rita Cianciarulo proves that by carefully sketching the map of that country on the blackboard.

It's All New But Wonderful

For the first time, the shy Freshmen enter the building. They are slightly frightened at first, by so many things that are very new and different to them. After receiving their rosters, they helplessly proceed to find their rooms. What a number of subjects! And how shall I ever get from Room 2 to Room 302! Why that must be the tenth floor!

Industrious freshmen start out their high school careers with full and interesting rosters. Eager to acquire the use of a language other than their mother tongue, quite a few delve into the fascinating but tongue-twisting study of Latin or French.

Leaders Who Point the Way

Sister Ancilla Maria, I.H.M., Mathematics; Sister Angela Merici, S.S.J., English; Sister Angelica, S.S.J., English;

Sister Aquinata, I.H.M., Religion; Sister M. Canuta, O.S.F., Science; Sister Charles Eileen, S.S.J., English; Sister Clare Francis, I.H.M., History.

Rose Crilly, Patricia Fox, and Ann Frierson below concentrate on historically famous places in France.

Consilli Maria, S.S.J., Music; Sister Eleanor, I.H.M., Art and Foods; Sister Eunice Marie, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Everilda, O.S.F., Science.

Even Freshmen

This is the day when the seniors step out as big sisters. They are thrilled to think that they are the oldest in the school and the future graduates of Hallahan. Hence, they take great pleasure in meeting and welcoming the freshmen.

On this occasion the first year girls are entertained by either song and dance or a movie. This year it happened to be an entertainment featuring senior talent. Throughout, the little freshmen looked on wide-eyed and amazed at their big sisters' accomplishments.

The play this year dealt chiefly with the use of the handbook. Mickey acted as an unofficial guide for our younger classmates. He helped the freshmen learn more clearly, and understand more fully what their handbooks signify. This should help them know Hallahan better and like it more.

Above left, we see Elizabeth Hastings, President of Student Council, welcoming two wide-eyed freshmen, who seem to be enjoying it. Below we again see Betty autographing the card of Anne Hart, who represents the freshmen. Mickey plays host to a group of hungry freshmen, who seem to be enjoying their taffies. Included in this group are Helen M. Keating, Mary R. Power, Geraldine Kutsch, Rose Marie Germanatto. Of course a group of seniors also participated in the freshman play.

Have Their Day!

A real party always involves refreshments. This year the freshmen received taffies, which they apparently enjoyed. Wearing big green ribbons the first year girls stood out conspicuously. The seniors in turn were adorned with red ribbons. Both classes wore small tags pinned at their necks with the words "Welcome Freshmen" printed thereon. It was a great day for autograph collectors.

Now the freshmen have something to look forward to. They can't wait until they are seniors, and can put on a play for the future freshmen. They are looking to the future, but we have begun to look back wistfully.

Posing as bookends are Gloria Lucchesi, and Rosalie Dipetro. Jane Matsinger sings the curriculum song. A tap dance was rendered by Rose R. Lombardo, Alice Cardella, Theresa McGorry, Loretta McPhillips, and Gloria Corbo. The handbook is being explained to Anne Hart by Mickey Mouse. Mickey acts as an unofficial guide for this small freshman. Anne passes this information to Rose di Giacomo, Eleanor Kutsch, Patricia Sweeney, and Dolores McAnany, freshies all.

 subject instructors receives a statement from right conduct. She is informed of all lapses disabilities; in fact, of every condition affecting the advancement of individual students. Reports and suggestions helpful in individual guidance are noted by members of the faculty and given to the home room advisers. Physical defects, which might prove factors in retardation, are recognized by the adviser, and, if possible, steps are taken toward remedial measures. Such cases should be reported to the School Counselor.
 In all her advisory work, the home room teacher aims to assist and to guide the pupils of her class.
 She seeks to develop character rooted in the qualities of honor, obedience, loyalty, truthfulness, and scrupulous honesty. The home room teacher endeavors to make each pupil in her advisory section realize the importance not only of her scholastic attainments but of the personality record which she is making for herself during her high school years.
 She strives to lead the pupils to improve their personality traits, to acquire habits of gracious living, to hold sacred and to keep unmarred their personal integrity. To these aims and purposes the home room guidance is directed.

CURRICULUM

The Curriculum has been arranged to give every pupil at least eleven units in academic subjects.
 The remaining five of the sixteen required for graduation may be selected from the Commercial subjects, or from the Homemaking or Arts Courses, but not from both.

Sophomores Smile Proudly As . . .

Now the recent newcomer to Hallahan has the opportunity to prove she has caught the spirit of the school. Proudly, the sophomore wears her H of loyal blue. With greater confidence and initiative, she improves her scholarship, seeks admission to extra-curricular activities, and assumes responsibility for the leadership and achievement of the younger set. The largest group in the student body, counting those in the annex and in the main building, the sophomores demonstrate quantity and quality.

. . . The Blue H Replaces the Green

Our future scientists learn the mysteries of research work in the laboratory. They discover science, of which they knew little, prior to this year. We find Margaret Norrett preparing sori (fern seeds) for inspection under a microscope. Marie De Rosa, Teresa Conway, and Grace Orlando record their findings for comparison later. Mary Gallagher explains a chart on the life of a fern.

Mary Gallagher holds a frame containing silk cocoons. Rita Dunn, Grace Orlando and Rita Mastrogiovanni study different phases in the life cycle of a silk worm. Anna Rappelli, Marie Maurizi, Gilda Treppiedi and Marie Zubaly might be thinking of new silk blouses.

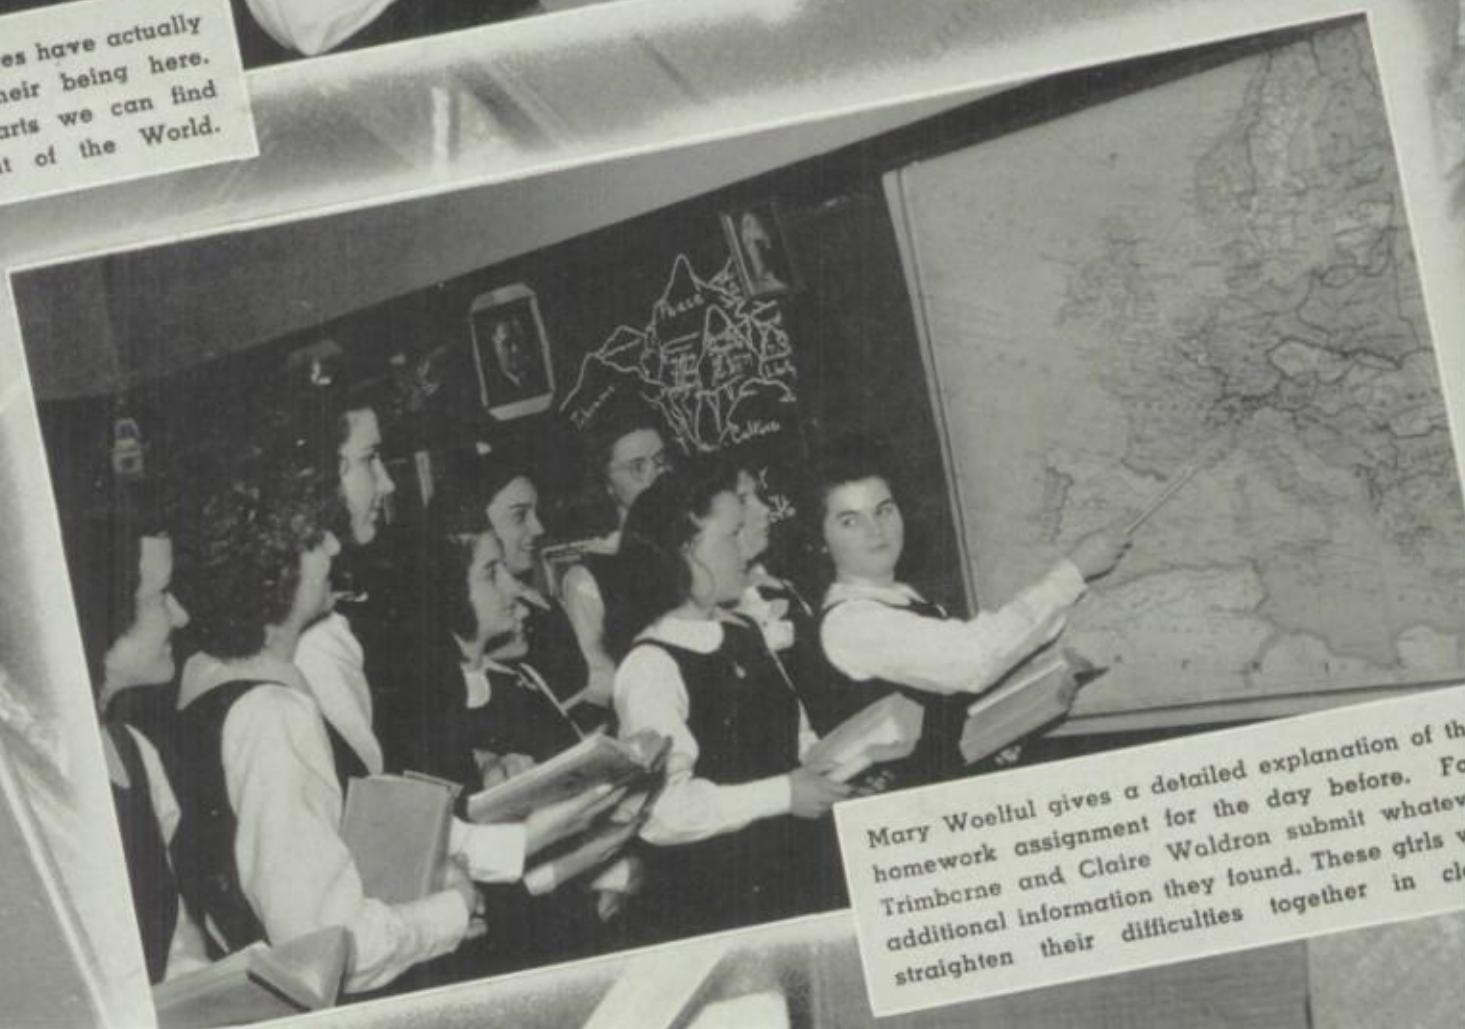

Do you suppose we have a prospective Rosa Bonheur, or an Adrian, perhaps even a Mainbocher of the future in this class? In their freshman year these girls were taught simple designs, but now they can use their own imaginations. Sally Caldwell is sketching her design while Irene Krajewski and Mary Walsh color theirs.

Hallahan's A Great School . . .

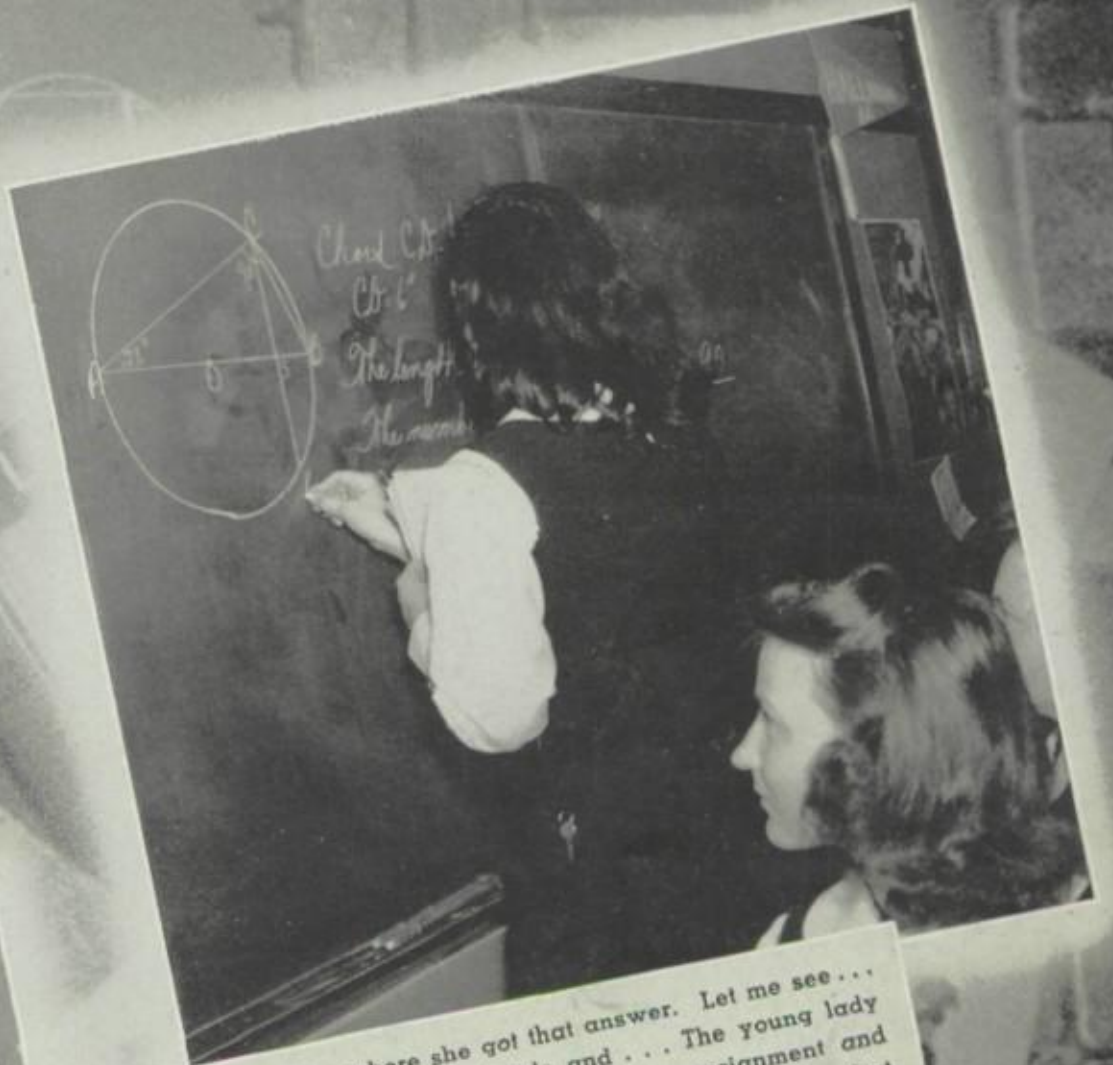

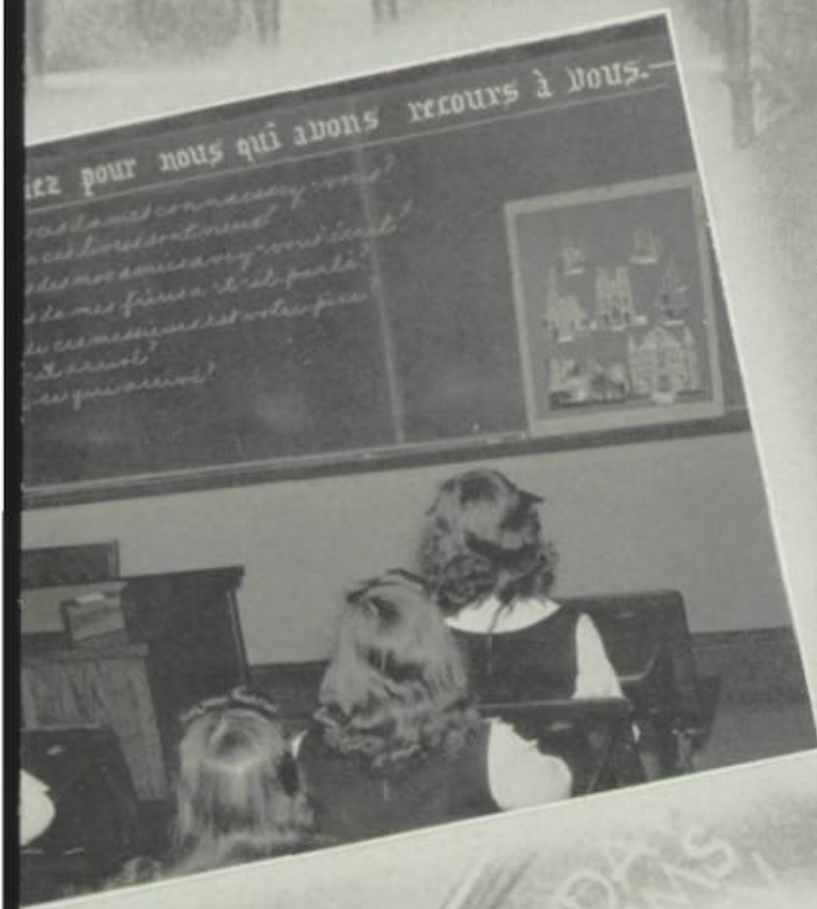

We realize at last that our young sophomores have actually begun to understand the purpose of their being here. In their youthful minds and opened hearts we can find The Source of All Wisdom. The Light of the World.

Next on our roster comes French. From this language they will learn to parlez-vous with charm and ease. Mary T. C. Gallagher explains the difference between le quel and laquelle. One is masculine and the other feminine. The rest of the 'quel family—next class, please.

Mary Woelfel gives a detailed explanation of the homework assignment for the day before. Fay Trimberne and Claire Waldron submit whatever additional information they found. These girls will straighten their difficulties together in class.

... And They're Part of It!

Hmm—I wonder where she got that answer. Let me see... you take one-half of this triangle and... The young lady at the blackboard is working on a class assignment and she is getting along famously. These girls realize that geometry is a subject which develops logical thinking.

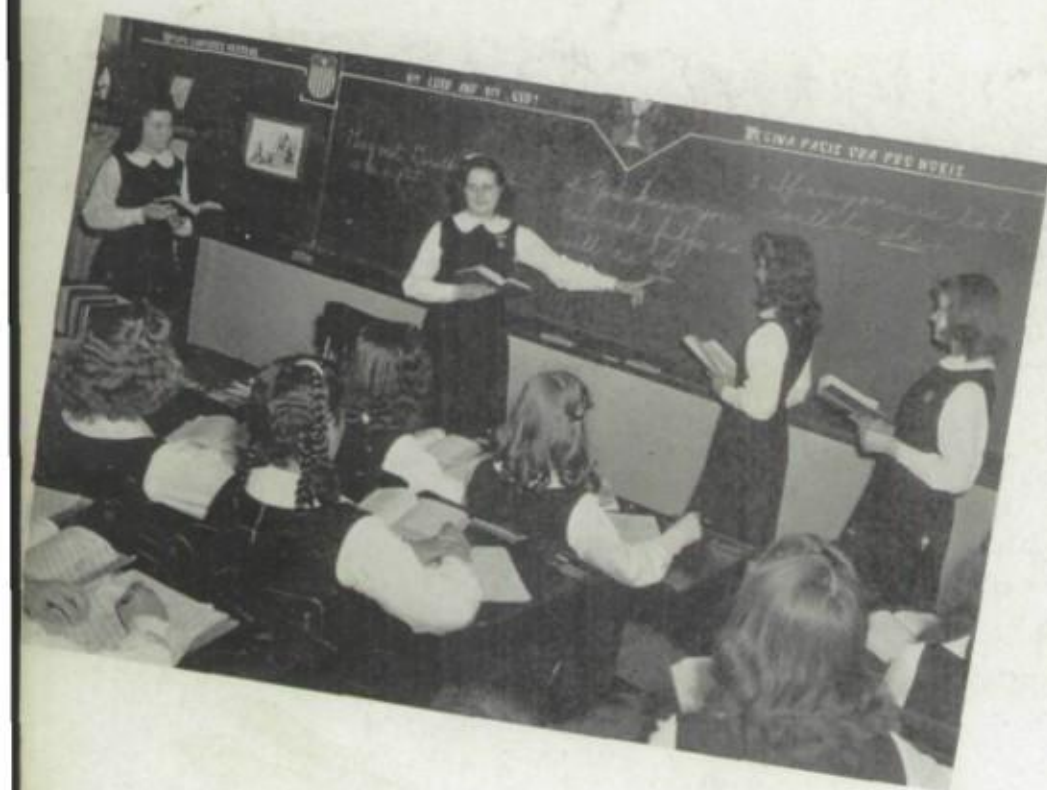

Just a minute. We thought Latin was a dead language. It doesn't seem so. Right here we find Pamela Jung quizzing Mary Heinze, Catherine Haggerty, and Catherine Barrett on idiomatic expressions of time, while the rest of the class listens closely for a mistake.

Each Day Brings Adventure

Sister Frances of Rome, S.S.J., English; Sister Francis Borgia, I.H.M., History; Sister Francis Clare, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Gertrude Alcyse, I.H.M., Mathematics; Sister

Giovanni, S.S.J., Music; Sister Grace Francis, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Hyacintha, O.S.F., Science.

It is the end of their sophomore year, a year never to be forgotten. Its beginning found each and every one standing on the threshold facing new and marvelous horizons. They have had a taste of science in their biology classes. They have learned a great deal about good citizenship from Hallahan's student government organization. They have become integral parts of a community vastly different from all others. They will go on in their studies, adding to their responsibilities and opportunities, always a part of a greater Hallahan.

This is the class from which famous orators spring, and through which we acquire a taste for some of the finest works in literature. The best... from Chaucer to Chesterton.

Sister Irmalita, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Jeanette Clare, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister John Joseph, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Joseph Loretta, I.H.M., Geography; Sister Leona, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Louis Ignatia, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Louis Irma, S.S.J., Religion.

Who Says School Can't Be Fun?

Sister Louise Marie, I.H.M., Mathematics; Sister Marcella, S.M., Latin; Sister Marcia Marie, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Margaret Bernadette, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Maria

Fides, I.H.M., History; Sister Maria Gratia, S.M., Latin; Sister Maria Regis, I.H.M., Religion.

"Like music on the waters is thy sweet voice to me." Our sophomores learn quickly and correctly.

Sister Marie Celine, S.S.J., English; Sister Marie Emily, S.S.J., English; Sister Mary Adelpha, O.S.F., Science; Sister Mary Agatha, I.H.M., Clothing and Foods; Sister Mary

Agnes, S.M., Latin; Mother Mary Angelica, S.H.C.J., French; Sister Mary Consuela, I.H.M., History.

Whole Hearted Participation . . .

SOPHOMORE REPRESENTATIVES

Sophomores here are caught in a reverent moment looking intently on the posters depicting the Passion of Christ that the various members of the Art Department contributed for the Retreat.

Pictured are Mary Duffy pointing proudly to the Jeep which represents her section on the big Jeep Chart, Rita Salzano and Mildred Schiavo, eagerly anticipating our grand total of 134 jeeps.

. . . Strengthens School Spirit

We learn by doing. Hence, freshmen and sophomores learn the spirit of Hallahan through participation in its opportunities. The war presented needs which called for special skills and sacrifice of leisure. Girls who like to knit plied busy needles in the making of afghans. The sale of stamps and bonds became a school project which reached its climax in the purchase of a bomber and its second peak in the month of April in the procurement of 134 jeeps. In this effort to aid the war, sophomores and freshmen did a magnificent share.

They took their places as representatives of their respective sections and improved their knowledge of student government. Alert and interested, they lost no opportunity to know their school better and to get the most from its advantages.

The Easter retreat was an unprecedented experience for the freshmen. Many of the sophomores, in the annex for the preceding year, found the experience new and delightful.

Socially, mentally, and spiritually the undergraduates grew—not like Topsy but in the spirit of their school.

A Golden H For A Golden Year!

Junior Year in Hallahan is, indeed, a happy and exciting one. For many, it is the turning point of their school career, since, at this time, they must decide whether they wish to follow the Academic or Commercial Course. This decision, as many graduates can verify, is of vital importance in the formation of each and every student's vocation.

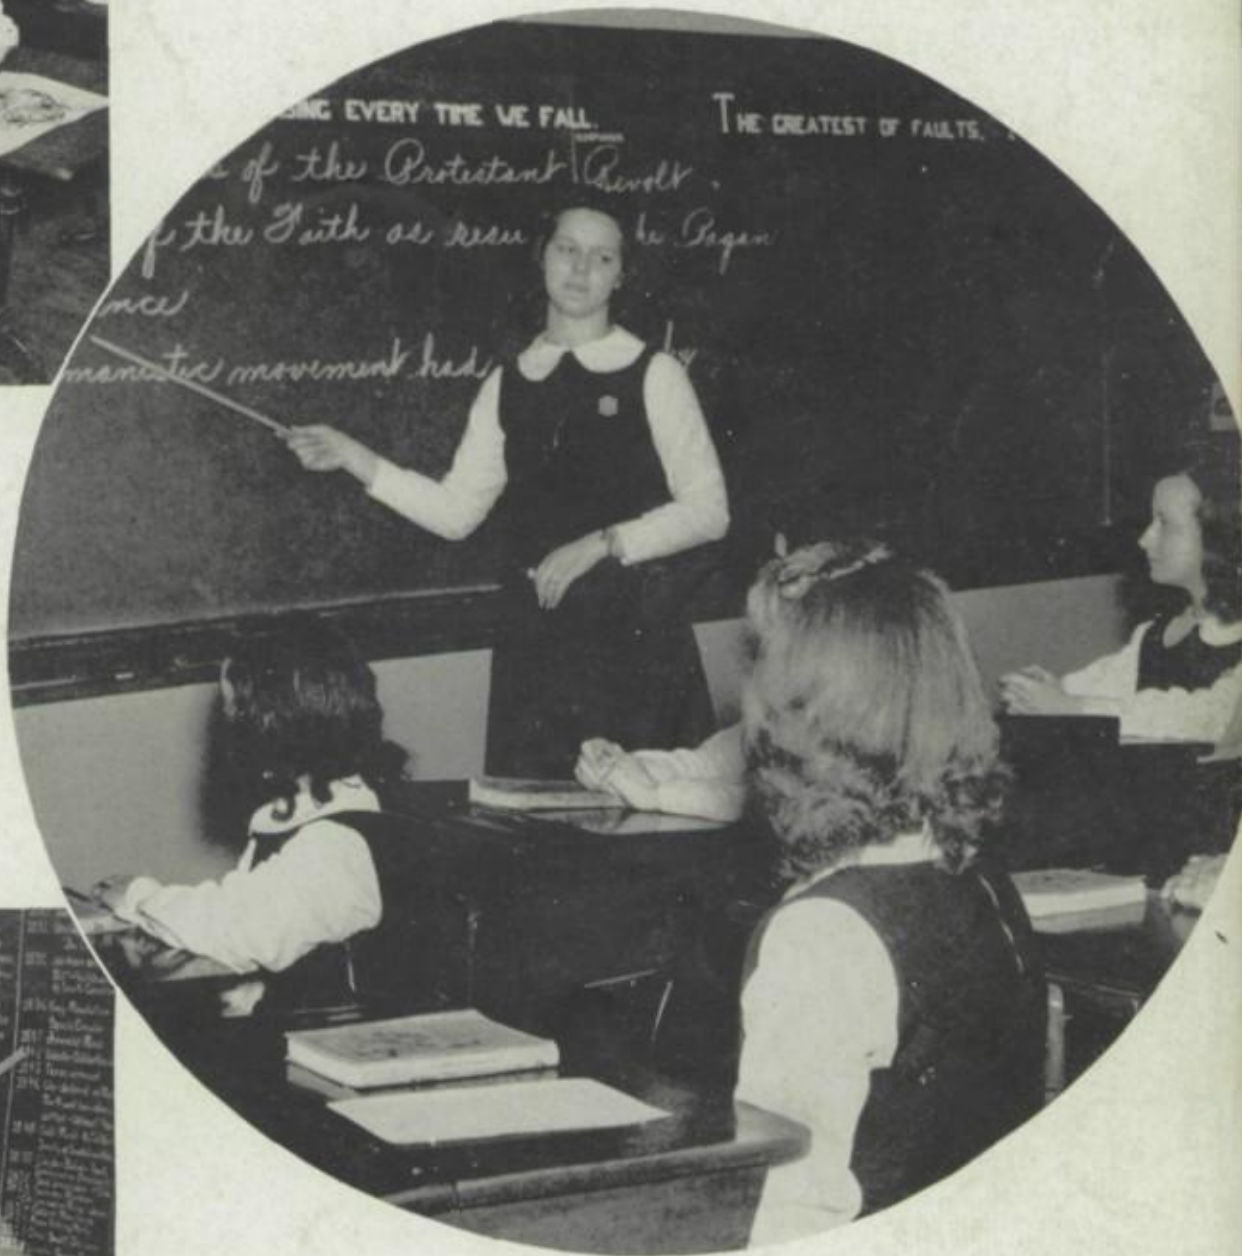

All Juniors look forward to the day when they will be the happy recipients of their class rings and still further to the days of their pictures, dances, trip, invitations, and, finally graduation.

The Junior Miss Takes A Bow

Mary Dee, Claire Webster, Irene Nagurny, and Antoinette Montone take advantage of the vocational art course, which is just one among the many cultural advantages offered by Hallahan for training students for the future.

One of the phases of Junior Religion deals with the Protestant Revolt. Here, Edna Smith discusses at the blackboard the causes for the Protestant Revolt and the weakening of the Catholic Faith as a result. Anne Kovac listens attentively to her fellow student.

Dates, dates, dates, and more dates! American History is sometimes confusing, but yet very interesting. Alice Daly likes to remember her dates as does Mary Jane Ulseton. Many Juniors consider history listed first among all favored subjects for its incomparable value. There's never a dull moment in a Junior History class.

Life Is More Complicated . . .

Theresa Killion, Marie Sauvageat, Josephine Quinn, Margaret Griffin, and Anne Griffin all agree that they would be willing to sew till eternity, watching their own ideas expressed in new and beautiful creations.

Sister Giovanni and Marie McGettigan discuss the importance of music appreciation. Miriam McCusker and Rose Marie Miceli intend to learn all they can from the discussion. The Juniors are taught how to enjoy good music and how to recognize their composers.

Joan Liebert, Alberta Little, and Frances Gelzinis have already learned the fundamentals of cookery, and are now showing their skill in preparing very simple but tasty dishes. If these Juniors prove their ability, they will continue this course in Senior year.

. . . But It's Better Than Ever!

Anna Young, Irene Mora, Rose Mary Washlick, Margaret O'Hara, and Catherine Montgomery find no trouble in translating Cicero's Orations. All Junior Latin scholars agree that Vergil and Cicero are the most interesting and most brilliant men of the Old World.

Evelyn Bonani, Teresa Donahue, Irene Blacher, Leona Zielski, and Catherine Conroy show their skill as competent typists. The principle that the development of accuracy is more important than the development of speed is often stressed in the first year study of Typing.

Marie Summers certainly believes that the mastery of Stenography will never be regretted no matter what may be the future of any student. The first year Stenography consists of a study of shorthand outlines. This prepares the student to take dictation in Senior Year.

As Personalities, Juniors . . .

Sister Mary Consuelo, S.M., Latin; Sister Mary David, S.M., Latin; Sister Mary Gertrude, I.H.M., History; Mother Mary Imelda, S.H.C.J., French; Sister Mary Joan, O.S.F., Religion;

Mother Mary Julia, S.H.C.J., Spanish; Mother Mary Simeon, S.H.C.J., Religion.

Almost at the top! As third year students the Juniors are on the next to last rung on the ladder leading to graduation. It is in this year that they are introduced to the commercial subjects. For those girls who are preparing for college, a well-rounded academic curriculum is offered. Because of the great need for scientific knowledge, many girls now take mathematics and chemistry. Besides these, numerous courses may be chosen in the home economic field.

Theresa Wilson, Dorothy Succhaski, and Rose Mary Strittmatter are doing their patriotic duty by earnestly performing the gymnastic exercises assigned to them.

Mother Mary Theodore, S.H.C.J., French; Sister Mary Victor, I.H.M., History; Sister Mauricia, I.H.M., Mathematics; Sister Miriam de Chantal, S.S.J., English; Sister Miriam Joseph, O.S.F., Religion; Sister Norma Anne, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Patricia Anne, O.S.F., Commercial.

. . . Really Have What It Takes

Sister Regina Immaculata, I.H.M., Mathematics; Sister Rita Gertrude, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Rosalita, O.S.F., Commercial; Sister Rose Bernard, I.H.M., History; Sister Rose

Mary, S.S.J., English; Sister Salome, I.H.M., Foods and Nutrition; Sister Sebastian, S.M., Religion.

Theresa Wilson, Catherine Bunting, Michalino Donardo, and Teresa R. Brennan earnestly read their history textbooks.

Grace Kenny, Margaret Ruderick, and Catherine McAndrews discuss the "Tale of Two Cities."

Sister St. Agnes, S.S.J., English; Sister St. Andrew, I.H.M., History; Sister St. Gertrude, I.H.M., Religion; Sister St. Henry, I.H.M., History; Sister St. Magdalen, S.S.J., English;

Sister St. Maurice, S.S.J., Music; Sister St. Michael, S.S.J., English.

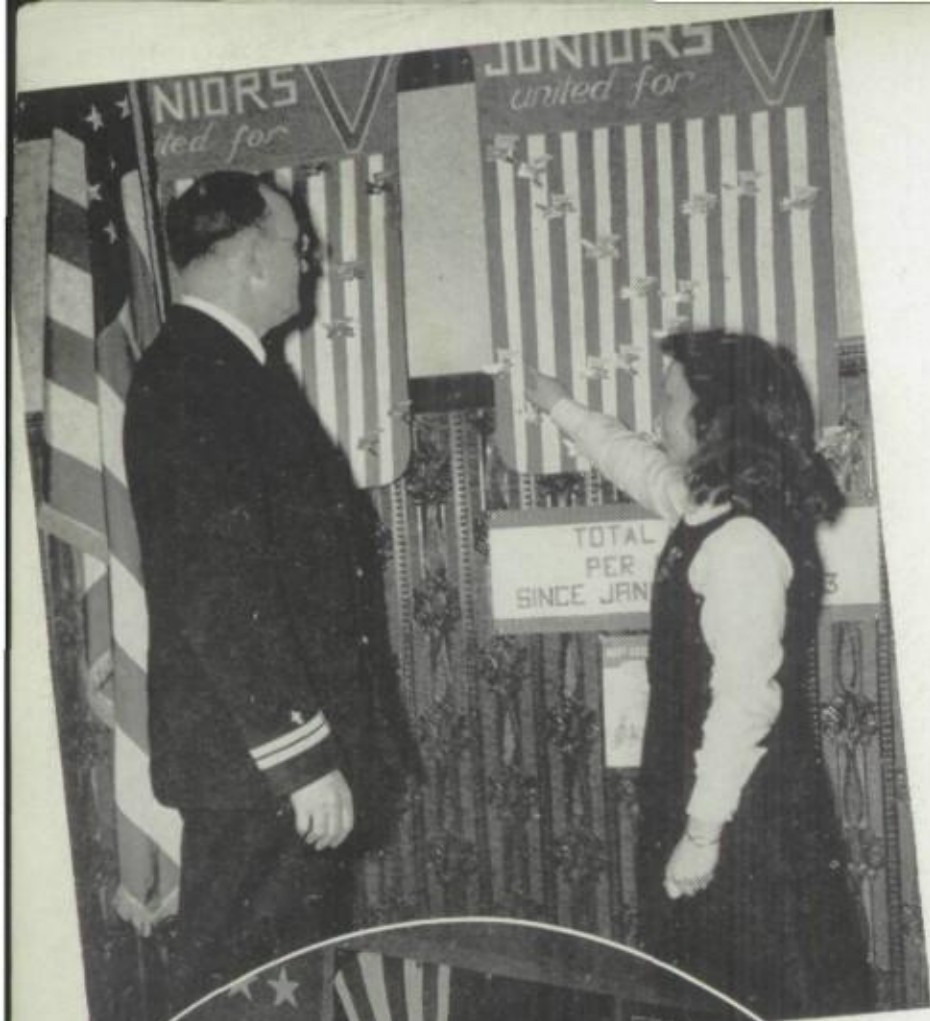

They Do Things

The juniors have a greater opportunity for participation in school activities than heretofore. In scholarship, as club members, and as participants in extra-curricular activities they are on the up and up. Every so often they crash the "Sand Script" headlines doing their share for victory, winning a prize in a city-wide art contest, and holding the floor at a convention. Not a few are musicians. You see their names in "Silver Sands." The blue ribbon becomes them. Everywhere you can recognize juniors by their spirit and those coveted rings.

An integral part of our Student Government organization, is the alert group made up of the Junior Representatives. While participating in the student government their responsibilities are increased each year so that they may assume the more important duties of council members. We congratulate them for their splendid work in the past years.

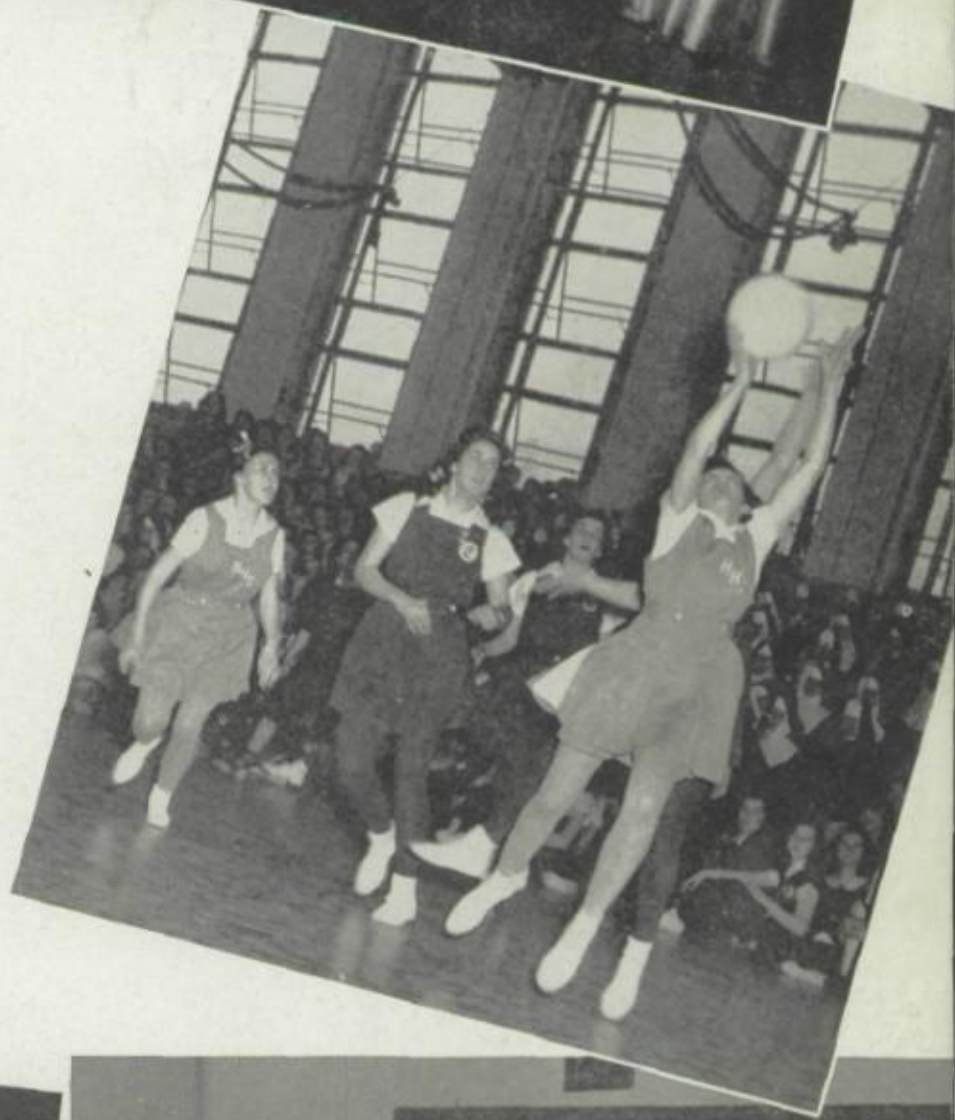

And Go Places

A Hallahan Junior is a lady of poise. Gone is the shyness of the freshman and the exuberance of the sophomore. Juniors have always been noted for outstanding ability in their studies, their zest in activities, and interest in everything that means Hallahan. For they are now among the elder daughters of the school. The junior philosophy is one of looking ahead. While they are supporting and increasing the honor of our Alma Mater, they are at the same time constantly looking forward to what the future brings. Already the senior year with its larger opportunities for service and leadership beckons.

The enterprising pianists, Anne Kovacs, Catherine Conroy, Antoinette Martinelli, entertained the appreciative audience at the Senior Play. Outstanding in athletic as well as scholastic achievement is Clare McCrosson. Her clever ability keeps our opponents always on their toes.

At the Student Government Convention, held at Saint Thomas More's, Teresa Caroselli gives forth her views on one of the many phases discussed. Pictured below, are girls noted for their ability as salesmen for Uncle Sam. They are: Frances Dupon, Margaret Griffin, Cecilia O'Keefe, Helen Tobin, Dorothy Hoepp, Rosemarie DeGovann.

Seniors Grasp with Eagerness . . .

Stevenson says that it's better to travel hopefully than to arrive, but no senior believes that. Once she has reached that year of years, it's a "grand and glorious feeling." It brings with it responsibilities as well as privileges. A great deal is expected of the eldest daughter of Alma Mater.

With the world at war, opportunities for service have increased. In a year that was different the Class of '43 met the difference but with the old school spirit. Congratulations!

. . . Their Banner Red and White!

This current year has seen our senior councilors taking over many new responsibilities in the course of their last school term at Hallahan. They have done much for defense. These pictures show this fact. Senior councilor Kathleen Sharkey encourages loyal Hallahanites to volunteer as air raid messengers by posting the names of these patriotic girls on the bulletin board on the first floor corridor. After the breakfast Elizabeth Hastings, Agnes Kresowata, Justina Cusanelli and Celine Sweeny boost our campaign.

In the next picture, chief justice, Margaret Carroll speaks to the Alumnae on the occasion of their annual breakfast at the Bellevue-Stratford and asks their cooperation in our bomber drive. A councilor indeed Madeline Fay comes to the assistance of a little freshie who is much puzzled by her handbook. As elder sisters the direction and initiation of newcomers to the spirit and regulations of Hallahan is among the many duties of the blue ribbon wearer. As is shown, these fine lassies face all duties with a smile.

School Never Held Wider . . .

Mary Mason will undoubtedly have little difficulty in solving the stamp problem. The girls are preparing a very attractive meal with whatever food is obtainable.

Note the efficiency of Caroline Wisniewsky and Virginia Whartman. The girls with their backs turned are also deeply concerned with their original creations.

If you are planning a visit to Mary Stoccardo's or Frances French's home, you can anticipate seeing a spick-and-span one. They are the future housekeepers.

Anne Urban is ably fitting Marie T. Smith. The outfit is not so promising now, but its completion will insure a pleasing effect. Note the pleasure Anne receives from the work. Marie T. Smith anticipates wearing a very attractive coat.

. . . Nor More Varied Interests

These girls seem quite engrossed in an interesting and timely subject—geography. Loretta McPhillips is pointing to a strategic location on the map while Margaret Novak, Anne McGee, Marie Salamone curiously look on it.

Apologetics offers to seniors an opportunity to defend their holy religion. Catherine Lawler is pictured among a group of eager, alert students as she is shown here.

These senior students are paving well the way of future mathematicians whose aid is in great demand today. Elizabeth Murphy, Anne Tanning are making rapid progress in this interesting and much needed field now.

This mature group of seniors is in the midst of a heated discussion concerning national problems. Catherine Fields is acting chairman, supported by fluent speakers.

Finally, she wears the most sought after colors, red and white, like a banner. She is now ready to enter life's pathways, as she has prepared herself through the curriculum and with the various activities offered to her by her Alma Mater. By her participation in the opportunities presented by her school, she has strengthened her character and has trained herself in Christian ideals and principles. She should prove well suited to take her place in the world, whether it be in a religious, professional, business, or domestic state.

A sound physical body is required to keep us mentally alert. Teamwork is needed by each individual to carry out her orders. The faces of Dolores Stein and Elaine Van Winkle show the enthusiasm with which they respond to their gymnastic exercises.

These interested seniors are listening to the voices of Maurice Evans and Judith Anderson in their magnificent portrayal of the tragic Lord and Lady Macbeth. This great classic is reserved until the final year in order that it may be more fully appreciated and understood. Margaret Cummings, Marianna Stein, and Doris Nicholson are reading the immortal lines while they listen. Eleanor Finn stands by with next record.

Vitalized as Students Face the Future

Every day this second period Latin IV class brings to life the well-known "dead language." While Rosemary Drudy reads from her textbook, Gloria Corbo displays her Latin scholarship on the blackboard. Their fellow classmates, including seniors Anne Bodalski and Dorothy Burton, seated in the first aisle, are carefully weighing the entire situation.

In the above pictures we note Yola Garuffi and Helen Kelly at the blackboard. Classmates Margaret Doman, Gladys Estabrook, Mary Hern are satisfied to watch from their places. At right, French IV students Anne Bodalski, Rosemary Drudy, Rose di Luzio, Mary Dunn, Kathleen Harrigan, and Jane Gavula read periodicals all written in their adopted tongue.

Blue is for Loyalty!

The duties of Vice-President are Grace Fletcher's: all agree she performs them diligently.

Elizabeth Hastings has been associated with student government since her entrance to our school. She, therefore, fulfills her duties as President with ability, poise, and dignity.

Our capable Secretary, Eileen Quigley, keeps accurate records of student council meetings.

Student government is student participation in the government of the school. Every girl is expected to take part in it by observing and respecting the rules and regulations of the organization. Student Councilors, elected by their fellow students and approved by the faculty, direct traffic, help keep order in the study hall and cafeteria, and inform the students about new school regulations. They also study the students' opinions so that they may more successfully represent them at the council meetings held every two weeks. Here difficulties are discussed and beneficial suggestions adopted.

The blue ribbon is the councilor's badge of fidelity. By giving their time and energy to the betterment of the school, they live up to their installation oath. They more than merit our respect, gratitude, and admiration.

Chief Justice Margaret A. Carroll took an active part in the proceedings at the Alumnae's breakfast. Seated beside her is a well-loved former faculty member, Sister Giovanni.

A trio of favorites—our A. A. officials! Nancy Smalley, President, is also known for her energetic basketball playing, as a member of our varsity. The skillful managing of our sports events is due to hard-working Anne Hoffman; Vice-President Kathleen O'Malley is another varsity star and all-round athlete.

Third Row: Margaret Parker, Mary Ann Queenan, Susan Ruocchio, Agnes Skelly, Regina Treacy, Jean Worth.

Some patriotic seniors volunteered to devote their time to the Red Cross; others, to the local Draft Board. Claire Joyce, Alma Dietzel, and Margaret Waite are seated at the typewriters. Do you know the other seniors?

The eager hands of Concetta Saraceni, Margaret M. Toffard, Santa D. Paolucci, and Mary Hanahan, as a patriotic duty, willingly prepare scrapbooks for the boys in the service.

. . . In Relaxed and Tense Moments

The Misses Fay, Moran, and Avender—"behind scene."

Margaret Zangerle, shown using an airbrush, won art distinction at La Salle and at Gimbel's. Elizabeth McDaniels won first prize at the La Salle Press Meet.

In the Hallahan-South Catholic Spelling Quiz over Station WFIL, Margaret Schmidt, Mary Donohue, and Mary McDonnell represented our Alma Mater. Father McHugh acted as moderator. Three cheers for South Catholic and our Hallahan trio!

The Merchant

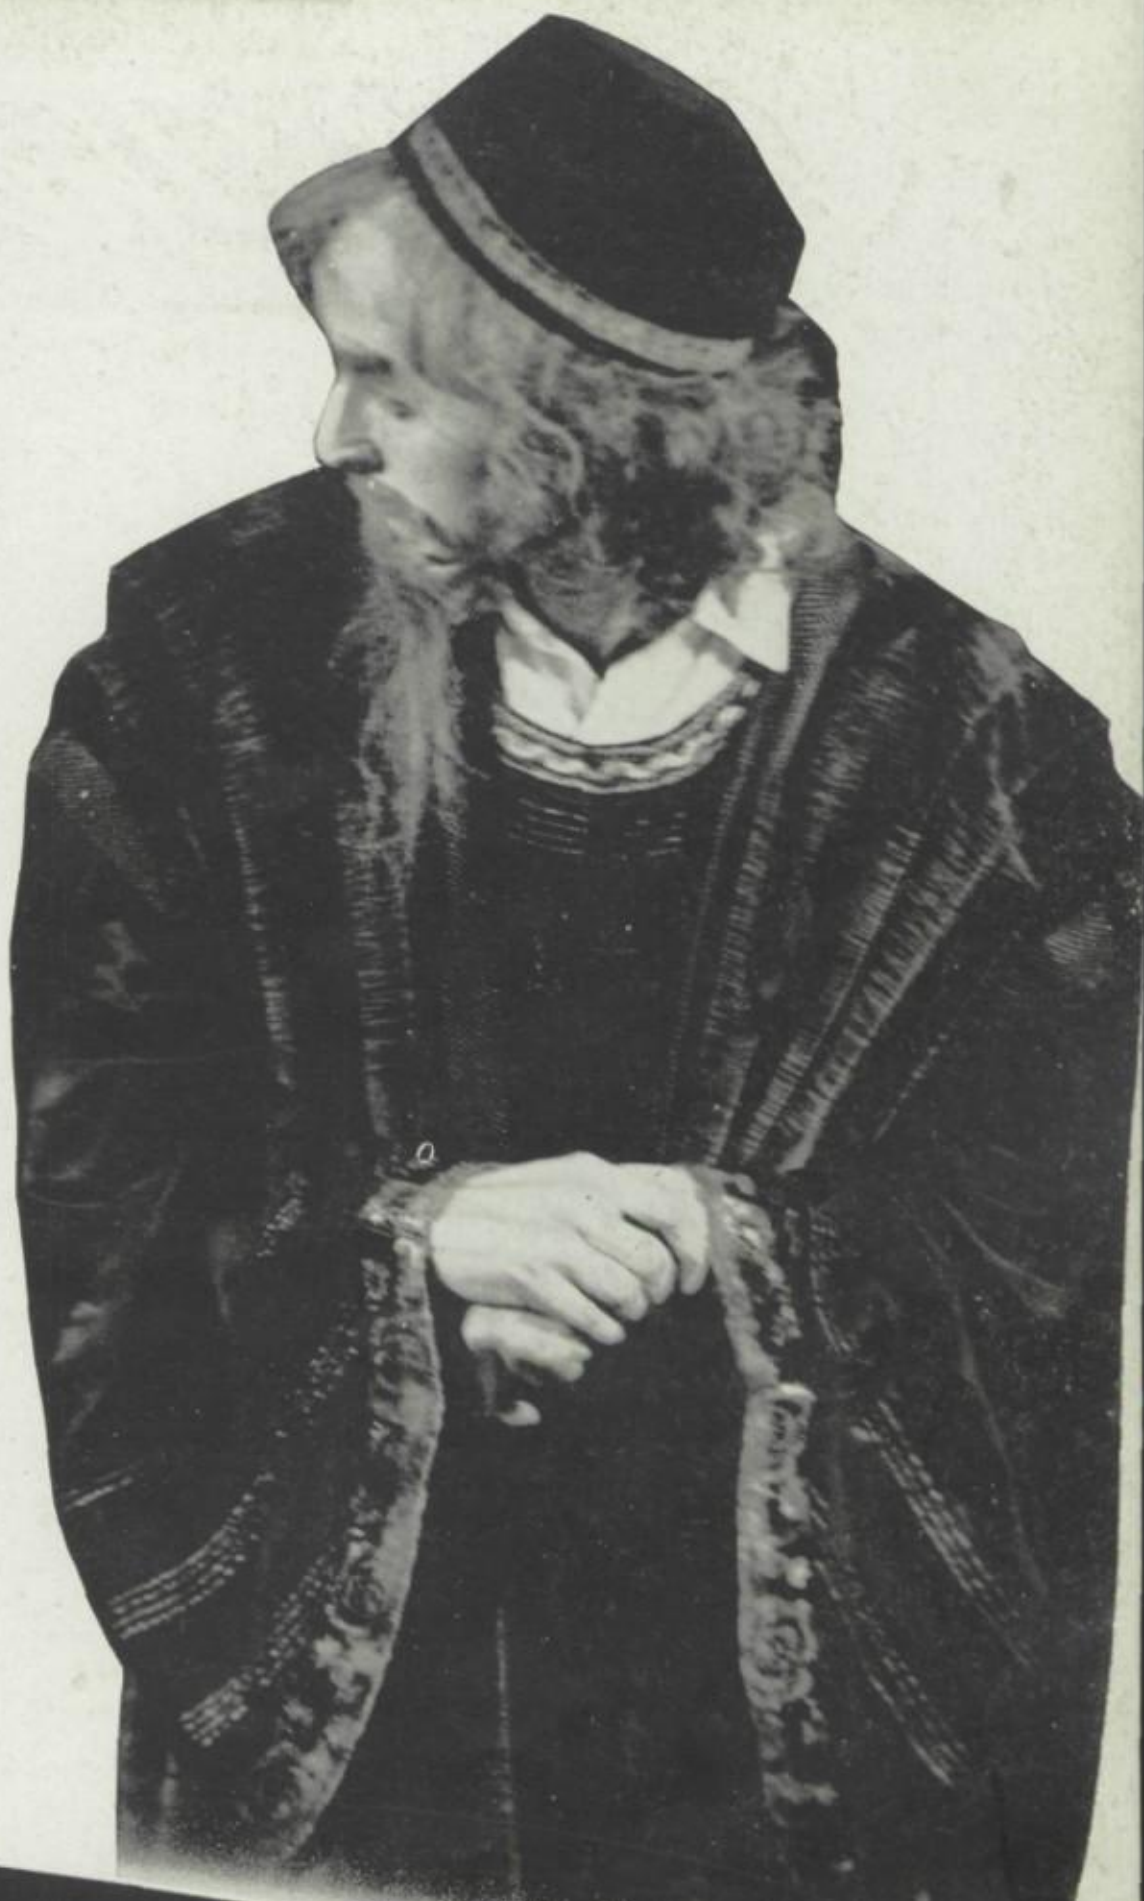

Antonio, the fabulous merchant of Venice, is played by Rosemary Drudy. His loyalty to Bassanio forces him to adhere to the cruel demands of Shylock. His encounters with Shylock afford him many uncomfortable moments.

The pale yellow moon looks down on these star crossed lovers of Venice. The beautiful Jessica, who sought refuge from her father in her lover's arms, is played by Dorothy Smith. The devoted Lorenzo is Teresa Sullivan.

Venice

One of the highlights of the senior year was the splendid dramatization of Shakespeare's immortal "Merchant of Venice" under the direction of Miss Margaret Mary Kearney. This comedy gave broad opportunity to the seniors interested in dramatic art. The play seemed made for the Class of '43. The players themselves were tense when Shylock held the point of his knife on Antonio's breast for his pound of flesh. Everyone laughed at Launcelot Gobbo who argued with his conscience to great effect. Romantic students relished the double love affair and wedding between Bassanio and Portia, Gratiano and Nerissa. The players, however, felt greatly awarded when the auditorium rang with thunderous applause.

Below, Bassanio, portrayed by Jeannette Bosch, is having quite a difficult time explaining to Portia, Margaret Toffard, what became of her ring which he swore to keep always. At the lower right, peace and contentment seem to be the key word between Gratiano, portrayed by Philomena M. Capozzoli, and Nerissa, by Anne E. Drivick.

Bassanio, Salarino, and Salanio watch Shylock with hate and fear in their eyes, as he approaches Antonio, ready to cut the forfeit—the pound of flesh—from the Merchant's breast.

Portia appeals to Shylock that, "The quality of mercy is not strained." But it is of no avail. He demands justice. Everyone's heart beat more quickly as lovely Portia seemed to side with the Jew. But she had a method in her madness, and soon cleverly turned the tables on Shylock.

Pageantry, beauty, and skill in dramatic art were demonstrated by the entire cast, but the Magnificoes (Eliz. Gaffney, Mary Brophy, Frances Ripka, Rita Leafey, Helen Thompson) displayed unusual brilliance in their crimson robes of the court. Every play has its comedy element, and in the "Merchant of Venice," Launcelot supplies the humor and merriment. Remember the scene in which he struggled with his conscience? Few will forget either the scene or Marie Keenan as Launcelot and Mary O'Malley as Old Gobbo.

"Down, therefore, and beg that thou mayest have leave to hang thyself," cries Gratiano, Philomena Capozzoli, to Shylock, Marie Yeager, relieving the tenseness of the court scene in which avarice had almost triumphed.

Virile Bassanio, Jeannette Bosch, chooses the right casket, much to the joy of Portia, Margaret Toffard, Gratiano, Philomena Capozzoli, and lovely Nerissa, Anne Drivick. A romantic gondola riding across the stage on four wheels greatly surprised and delighted our audiences.

The smiling ladies, Patricia McKeaney, Ann Froschle, and the gentlemen, Valeria Haggerty, Jacqueline Wooley, enter the court prior to the exciting casket choosing.

We must hope
For we are young

So by the hope of pre-Paschal noon,
The faith in the past, in the morrow soon,
The strength in the eye turned toward the sea,
The life of the spirit always free,
By this and the sea crests' rising slope,—
We shall hope.

For days when bodies match the chainless mind,
For ages when tyrannies cease to bind,
For times when rich crops are in fertile ground,
When trenches and barbed wire gird not nor surround,
For ages when terror is left behind,
For tomorrows unborn, for courage to cope—
We shall hope.

We build the future on the rock
Of Charity, and this we lock
With Faith in Hope and Love
As issued from a Hand above.
Such structure must be an invincible reef
Strong in love, high in hope, firm in belief.
This it is posterity requires;
To this it is Youth aspires.

Shirley J. Kieser, '43.

Bless Us Ere We Go

May thirty-first, the day on which the Baccalaureate Mass was celebrated, found the graduating class of 1943 misty eyed but happy. This was the last time they would ever be together to receive Holy Communion in a group and to sing their favorite hymns. Yet they were happy because they were nearing the great day that would give them the opportunity to conquer new worlds.

The text of the sermon was a source of inspiration to every student. Its message became another golden memory to be cherished always. After the Mass, followed the customary march from the Cathedral through the Parkway to the school.

Philadelphia's famous Logan Square and beautiful Cathedral have been the background for a great demonstration of fervent Catholicity. The hearts of the Class of '43 have been lifted up and dedicated again to the ideals of a Christian education. They have pledged themselves to live worthy of the tradition of their school. This has been a day of strength and beauty, another source of golden memories.

And Now The Class

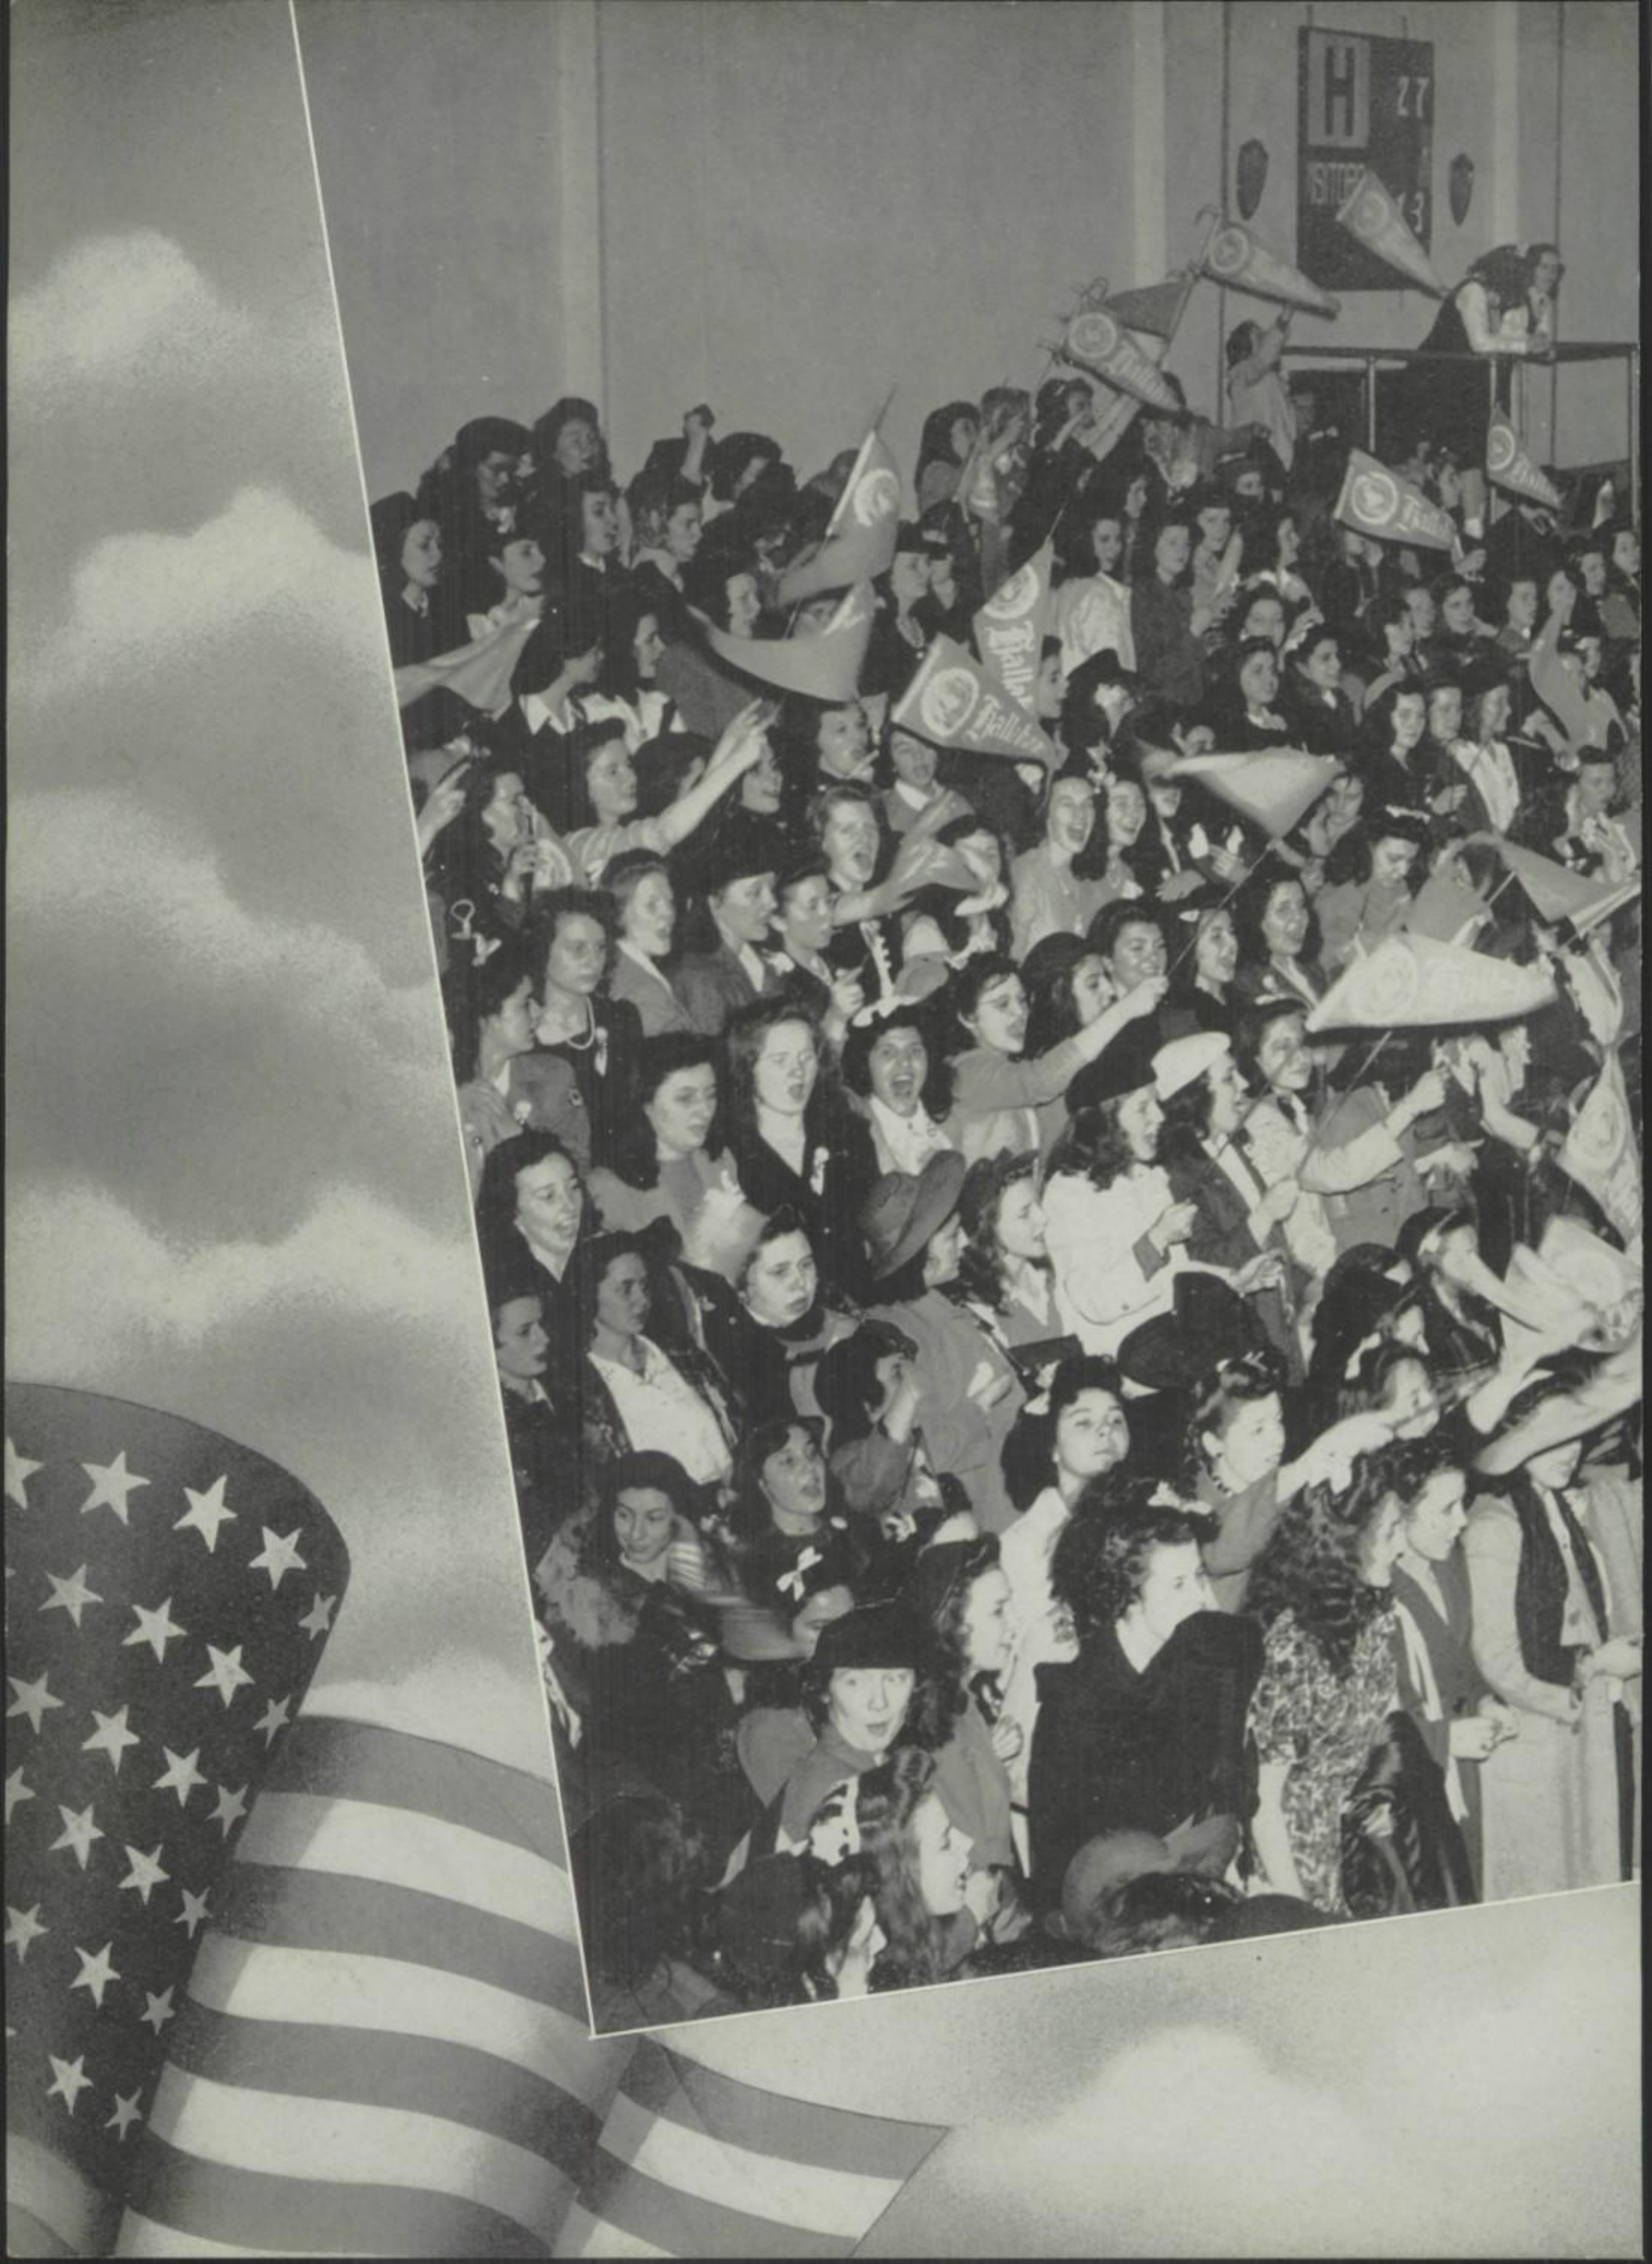

of '43 Graduates

Once again June comes and with June, graduation! Here, we see a noted speaker addressing the girls, assembled together for the last time. Monsignor John J. Bonner awards us our diplomas. To our friends outside, the class of '43 brings with it only its pleasant memories.

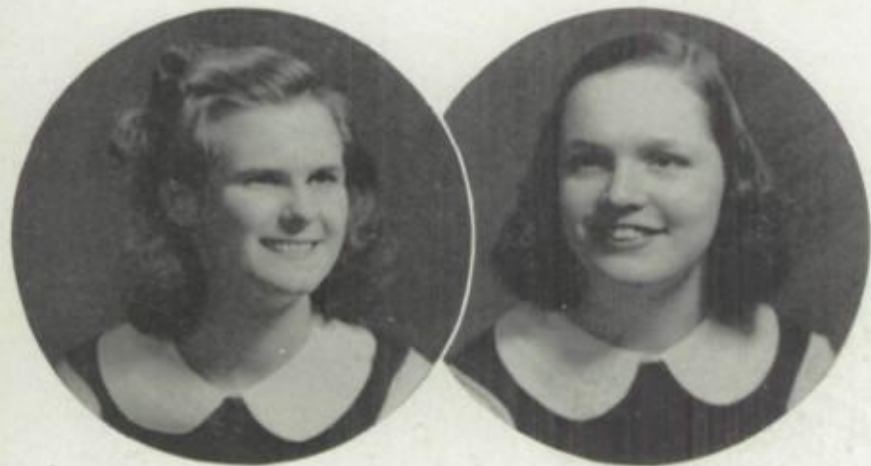

Everything clicks in Hallahan fashion as seven hundred dreams come true. Sweet girl graduates smile and bow. Congratulations Class of '43. Be the memories of happy years yours to cherish and remember. Commencement is a beginning. The best is yet to be! Make it worthy of you.

Sand Script Prints

For ten years "Sand Script," by acquainting Hallahanites with the news and views of the students and activities of their school, has been a prime factor in promoting school spirit. The aspiring journalists on the staff find that putting a paper to press involves many varied tasks; such as, gathering and writing news, proofreading galleys, and planning makeup.

Hallahan Life and News

Elizabeth Mackle, Mary McVeigh, Claire Joyce and other senior staff members at right fold papers to be mailed to interested people throughout the United States.

This group of animated students comprises the junior newswriting class. The activity, consisting of two periods a week of discussion and theory, is open to those who have the required mark in English and sufficient creative ability. Catherine Hanlon, Bernice Appel, and Louise Hodson in foreground are already active contributors.

Silver Sands is a bi-annual publication with a literary magazine and a year book of pictorial records. One provides a medium through which the student can express her original ideas and feelings; the other, a memoir in the form of pictures, captures all the pleasant events of a four year high school course, which each student cherishes as an intimate part of her high school life. Students throughout the school may contribute to the literary magazine. The year book staff is made up exclusively of seniors.

SILVER SANDS STAFF

Supporting staff consists of Rose Quinn '44, Anne Wynne, '43, Josephine Dunphy '45, Frances Ferris '45, Margaret Lees '44, Mary McVeigh '43, and Anne White '44. Rose's animal essays, Margaret's and Anne's gory mystery stories, and Anne Wynne's well-known poetry are only a few of the interesting articles in the book.

Judging from her many contributions to the book, editor Mary McDonnell believes in quantity plus quality.

White collar girls? No. Two spirited senior typists plugging away at the keys on material for the year book.

Extra Activities For Extra Energy

Hallahan's club activities are numerous and varied. They provide students with an excellent opportunity to pursue their special interests in extra curricular activities. The presidents of the various clubs are versatile. Marie Naughton and Catherine Jones, chairman of the cafeteria and lockers respectively, are both blue ribbon girls and top ranking commercial students. Dorothy Hoepp has distinguished herself as the only sophomore in the group. Margaret Carroll is well known as Chief Justice, and as contributor to "Silver Sands," as well as president of the Debate Club. She left in April to enroll for a junior engineering course at Drexel Institute. Jane Matsinger is renowned for her vocal work ever since her freshman days and now is the outstanding senior in the Glee Club. Genevieve Cunningham, president of the Latin Club, is well known as an all around student. Dorothy Smith is another top notch student as is Jane Gavula. Both of these girls hope to further their education in their specific fields after graduation. Irene Tolosky is better known about Hallahan for her excellent art work, but is also noted as head of the mission promoters. Anne Logan is another blue ribbon club president. Eleanor Prendergast, president of the Eucharistic promoters, is a notable contributor to school publications. Rita Di Fulgo needs no introduction. Her work as president of the Camera Club is well known to all. This year the club excelled in its interpretation of poetry by means of the camera in the literary issue of "Silver Sands."

Let No Hallahan Student Say . . .

Since its organization in October, 1928, the orchestra has always been one of the outstanding activities of our school. Only the fundamental orchestral instruments had been primarily employed, but, with the ever increasing flow of talent, the seed once planted, began to grow and finally blossomed into the great orchestra we now have, complete with all required symphonic instruments. The enthusiastic spirit of the pioneer orchestra members has been carried through the years and is still a dominant factor in producing successful concerts. As a result of the efforts of the faculty of the music department and of the students, it has been possible to again hold a Second All-Hallahan Concert, in addition to taking our part with the other diocesan Catholic girls' high schools in the annual music festival, held Monday, May third, in the Academy of Music.

In a world of blackouts, music is still a light for the spirit with power to guide and exalt.

Mr. Felix Meyer has again won recognition and deserving laudations for the orchestra as well as for himself. During his two years with the orchestra, Mr. Meyer has proved himself an efficient and capable conductor.

Words Can Sing

Perfection in speech through harmony, rhythm, thought, and emphasis is the object of every member of the Verse Speaking Choir. Bound together by a common interest in poetry and voice training, the choir has become one of the major extra-curricular activities at Hallahan, one of the few schools offering such an opportunity. Not only does it strive to give pleasure to an audience by giving life to beautiful words by reading them as they were meant to be read, but also to affect every member personally by teaching poise and charm.

MISS MARGARET MARY KEARNEY
Director

The choir, under the able direction of Miss Margaret Mary Kearney, has performed at various army camps and nearby cities during the past year. They have added to their already large repertoire the patriotic selections, "Ballad for Americans" and "Plain Chant for Americans."

Echoed In Our Hearts

The Hallahan Glee Club furnishes many excellent opportunities for those students who like to sing and are desirous of bringing pleasure to other music lovers. They specialize in three-part selections. Under the capable direction of Sister Agnes Anita, S.S.J., the group has reached a new high during the past year.

In addition to singing at Mass on Thursdays, the girls put in many hours of hard practice in preparation for the musicales of which the Hallahan Glee Club has always been a feature. The group has also done its share in entertaining our servicemen.

The two pianists, Antoinette Martinetti, a junior, and Rita Cianciarulo, one of our freshmen, are familiar at Hallahan musicales. Antoinette has also played for the Combined Musicales for the past two years, while Rita lent her talent to the Freshman Concert successfully.

THE REVEREND JOHN A. MURRAY
Director

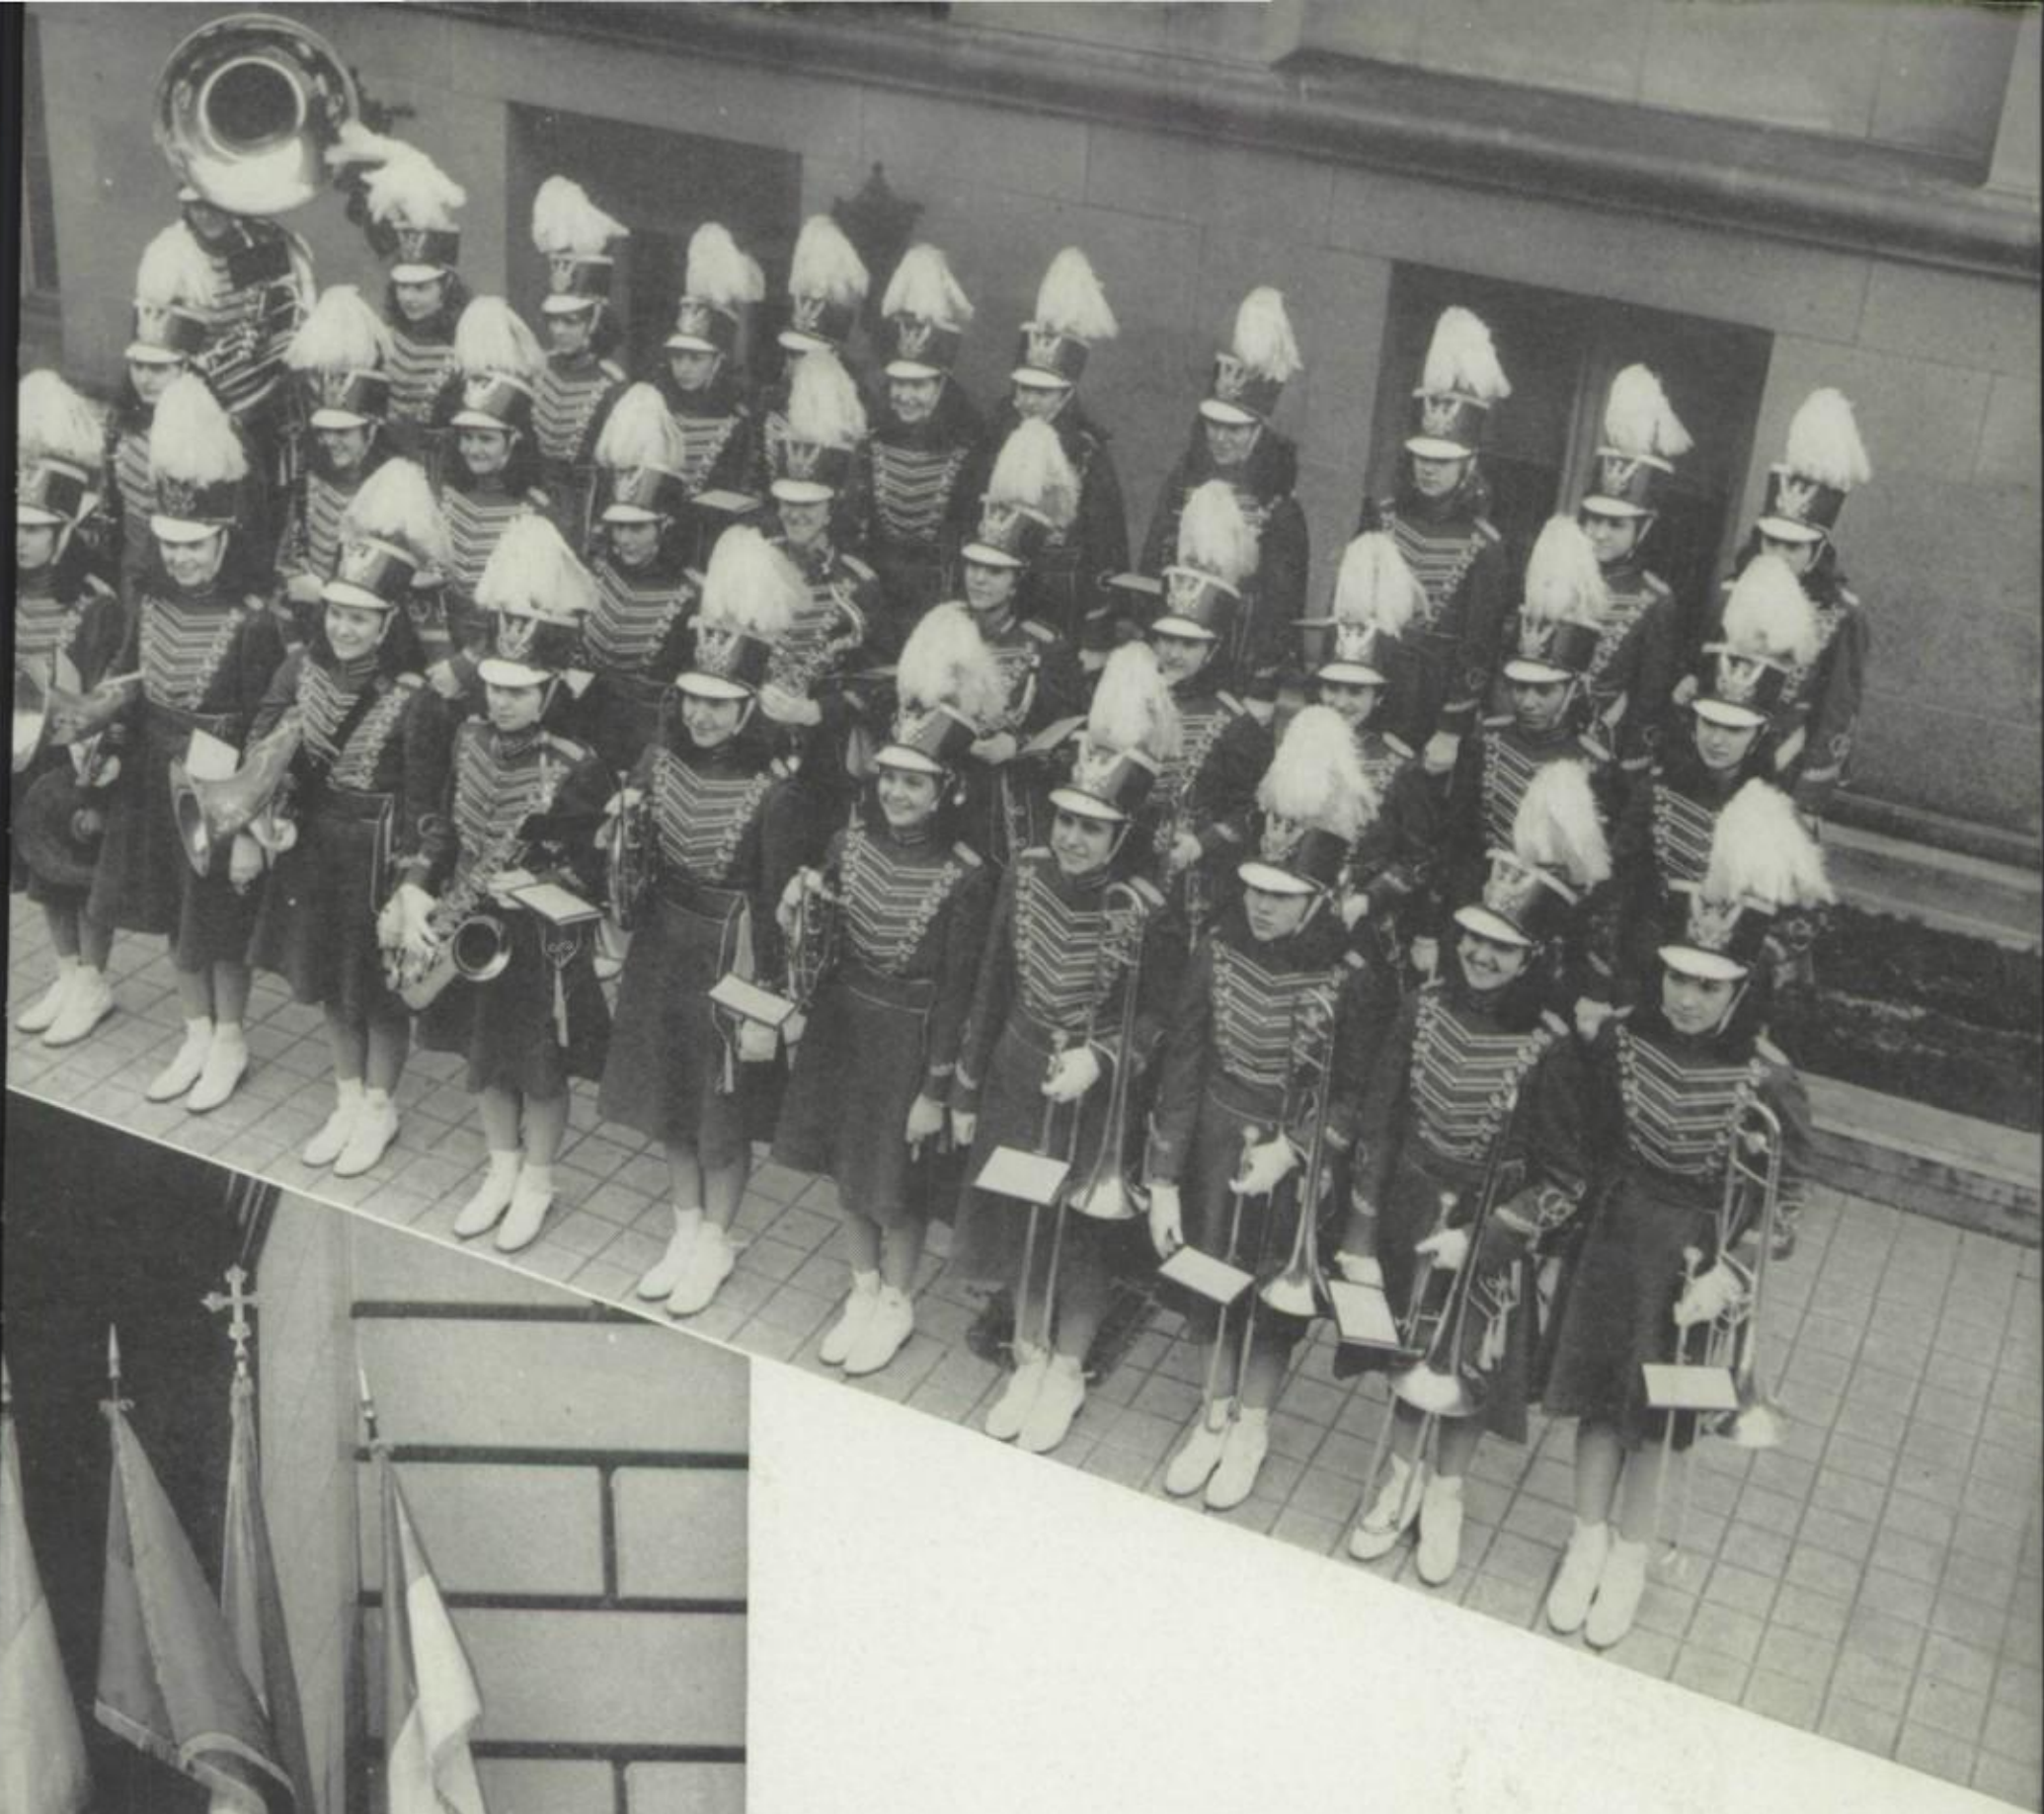

Colors flying, hearts singing, our band graces many occasions with its appearance and music. It played at our spirited games, the Navy Day parade, and served as escort at the Baccalaureate Mass. Recently they had an opportunity to play for Uncle Sam. Leading the parade they escorted the Quiz Kids, here on a bond selling tour, from the Thirtieth Street Station to City Hall. Each kid rode in a jeep. The band organized in 1935, reached a new high this year with its many spectacular drills set to modern music and its tapping majorettes.

Come On Hallahan, Let's Go!

Boost That Score!

HALLAHAN TEAM HATS OFF TO YOU— and indeed many a hat was lifted to this glorious group. Yes, we said glorious and now add victorious. The blue and whiterers gained triumph in all games, with the exception of our encounter with Audubon who broke our winning streak by a slim margin of 23-21. However this defeat did not interfere with the confidence of the ever determined squad.

With magnificent support from the members of our faculty, who were seen at every game possible, and through the staunch backing of our student body, we were again able to regain the Catholic League Championship by defeating our arch-rivals.

Yes, the best team always wins, but this is a practical impossibility without the never tiring efforts of our widely known coach Miss Catherine McPeak.

Without the support of the band, we feel our games would have lost much of their spirit and spectacular quality. Music was the source of inspiration to which our court-warriors marched to victory. After hearing the clashing of cymbals, and beating of drums, to be other than enlightened, and determined, as was our dauntless Varsity of '43, was utterly impossible.

Pictured above are some scenes from the spectacular season of 1942-1943. On the top, as always, we find our incomparable coach, Miss Catherine McPeak, backing up our captain, Anne Meissler, as they greet Merchantville's coach and captain. In the center, note the sparks of our cheering section. A tense moment is seen below as Nancy Smalley and Kathleen O'Malley out-leap Merchantville forwards. The opposite page shows our sparkling band and joyous cheerleaders after our victory over West Catholic. In the center we meet our smiling varsity; reading from left to right: Nancy Smalley, Anne Meissler, Betty Di Filippo, Claire McCrosson, Kathleen O'Malley, and Rose Flood. Below, we score over Little Flower.

Even Here That Spirit Shows

Although our Hockey Team has not received 100 per cent student body support other athletic activities enjoy, it continues to be the chosen sport of a faithful and fighting few. Despite the inspiring efforts of Miss McPeak, our team just broke even with one victory, one defeat, one tie. Any school that so eagerly awaits the basketball season should be just as enthusiastic for a winning Hockey Team. The members of the hockey squad feel that the rank and file of our students have not yet discovered this great sport. Let us hope that more and more are soon attracted to this fast moving game. You'll then agree it is "the sport for sports."

Forward Anne Meissler and Capt. Anne Boyle wait anxiously while Margaret Hoerst bullies with a Little Flowerite. In the background we note Wing Mary Kelly.

During an exciting moment of the Little Flower game, Anne Meissler and Regina Burke are caught in the midst of three opponents. The score was 3-0, Blue on top.

Dive To Victory

One hundred girls tried out for the 1943 swimming team. From this number, twenty were selected for their outstanding form and speed. Among these were Rita Wolpert, accomplished diver, holder of the 100 yards freestyle Junior A.A.U. Championship for 1942, and possessor of 19 A.A.U. medals and 9 Interscholastic ribbons; Helen Wright, captain of the team, veteran of two seasons, and speedy swimmer on the freestyle relay team; and Doris Stare, exceptional backstroke. Other freestyle speedsters who secured a place on the relay were Ann Wolpert, manager of the team; Helen Echtermeyer, and Nancy Murray.

On the Home Front

December brings not only Santa Claus, but also Hallahan's interclass games. These games are joyously welcomed, since they are the first inkling of our sparkling basketball season, with its "blue and white" victories. Seniors, juniors, and sophomores eagerly participate. Each player does her best, hoping that her ability merits a varsity place. Poster races add zest as each group strives to gain the cup. This year our seniors were victorious, but in points only, for they could not be outdone in spirit by their under classmen. Class cheers, good sportsmanship, and gladdened hearts make the interclass games a part of Hallahan's brightest side. These games call for loyalty and demand the best that's in you. This call has never gone unanswered.

Everyone awaits the exciting interscholastic games. In the second picture, Anne Meissler defends the honor of the seniors while Claire Mulholland endeavors to do likewise for the sophomores. In the picture below, we see Anne Meissler again striving to uphold the glory of the senior team.

Hallahan On Parade

On June fourteenth when the rest of the nation stepped out to honor Old Glory, Hallahan was on parade too. In line with army tanks, merchant marine heroes and marching middies, the "Blue and Whites" paraded briskly to show their patriotism. They were led by the bands of the Catholic girls' high schools, combined to make one colossal regiment. Here they are seen marching in true military style as they pass renowned Wanamaker's on their way east on Chestnut Street.

Silhouetted against Philadelphia's City Hall, the Hallahan Band is in line, Navy Day, October twenty-fifth. Here they sing while marching, the Navy's own "Anchors Aweigh."

The eager faces of the glee club members illumined by flickering candles made an impressive sight as they brought the spirit of Christmas to Hallahan. The glee club walked in traditional procession through the corridors singing merry carols. Some of the carolers pictured include Jane Matsinger, Theresa Harris, and Rose Di Luzio.

Two Groups of Intellectuals

In the picture above, we see a group of delegates from the public and Catholic high schools of eastern United States who attended the forum held at Drexel Institute on Saturday, January 16. Seated at the extreme right is Hallahan's representative, Agnes Kresowata, who also acted as chairman of one of the thirteen groups participating in the forum. The topic presented for discussion was: "Secondary Youth in Production."

Harve Fischman, Richard Williams, Ruthie Duskin, Gerard Darrow, and Joel Kupperman, better known as the Quiz Kids, receive the key to the city from Mayor Bernard Samuel, following their triumphal journey in individual jeeps behind Hallahan's snappy band.

Miss Liberty embraces the world as those representing the Allied Nations chorus "Let Freedom Ring."

All Hallahan and All American

The date was January twenty-ninth, the place was Town Hall, the event—the Second Annual All-Hallahan Musical. Almost four hundred girls were represented in the orchestra, symphonic band, glee club, verse choir, and finale. Last year's All-Hallahan Musical established a precedent. This year's, in the opinion of admirers, surpassed that performance. Clear tones, full harmony, and accurate rhythm combined to give the superb rendition that thrilled the audience. From the first melodious burst of the orchestra's overture to the last strains of the "Star Spangled Banner," Hallahan musicians showed that they could compete with the best.

The verse choir, under Miss Margaret Mary Kearney's able direction, thrilled the audience with its selections. Here Eugene Field's "Dutch Lullaby" casts its spell.

During the "Star Spangled Banner" all flags were lowered except Old Glory. The glee club, under the direction of Reverend John A. Murray and with harp accompaniment, sent its crystal tone and rich harmonies out to inspire its audience. Mr. John Thoms, our competent conductor, led the band for his own "Victory March."

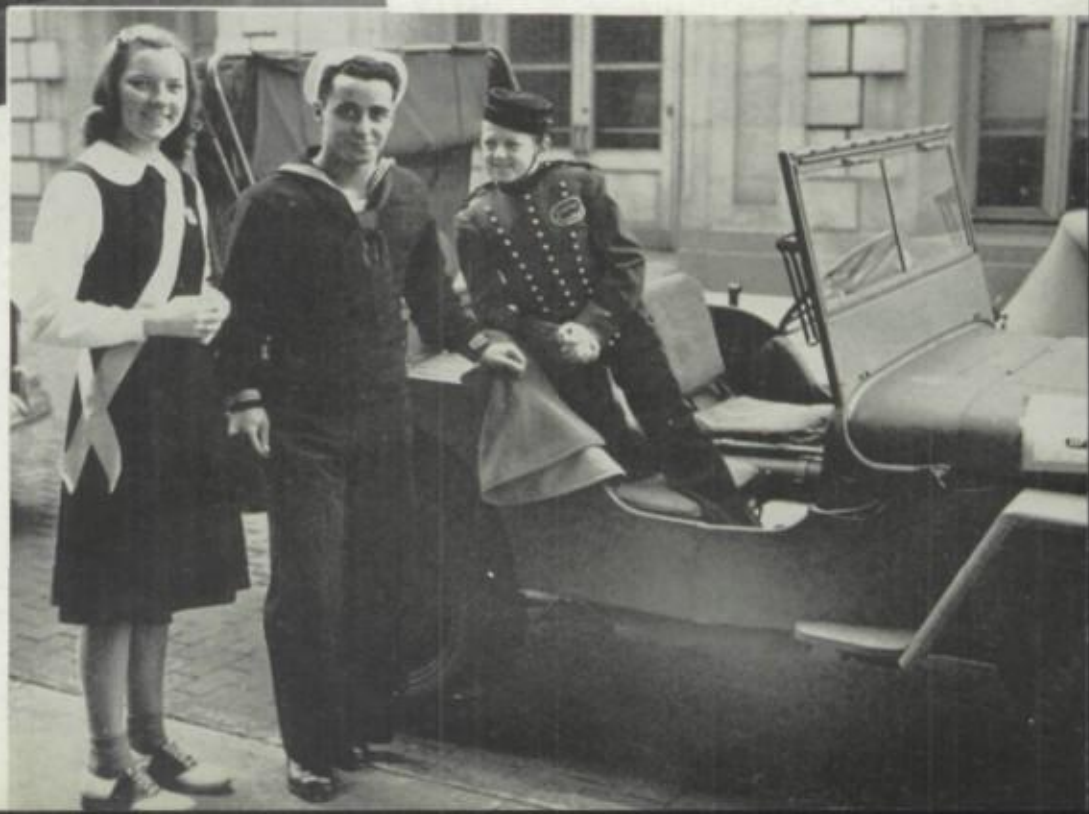

All for the U. S. A.

Mayor Bernard Samuel is shown inaugurating Victory Corps Week in the presence of Rev. Julian C. Resch, and of Dr. Alexander J. Stoddard. Elizabeth Hastings, representing the Catholic schools, is pictured at the proceedings in his office.

In the presence of Monsignor Bonner, Dr. Stoddard, Superintendent of Public Schools, and of Mayor Samuel of Philadelphia, Captain Eddie Rickenbacker presents Elizabeth Hastings with a certificate in honor of the war efforts of the Catholic city schools.

PLAYS FOR THE SERVICE

The Saxophone Ensemble, directed by Mr. Michael Guerra, was one of the most entertaining features on the program. The quartette sang beautifully before the well-known insignia of the Army Air Corps. Dr. Cox chatted pleasantly with officers at Camp Dix. The Verse Choir scored another hit.

ATLANTIC CITY . . . CAMP DIX . .

The program struck a patriotic note with a rendition of the "Star Spangled Banner." Army, Navy, Marines, and Air Corps all cry for more when our orchestra plays for them. The smiling girls and colorful gowns add a decorative touch to their music. Hallahan is proud of your patriotic contribution and salutes you.

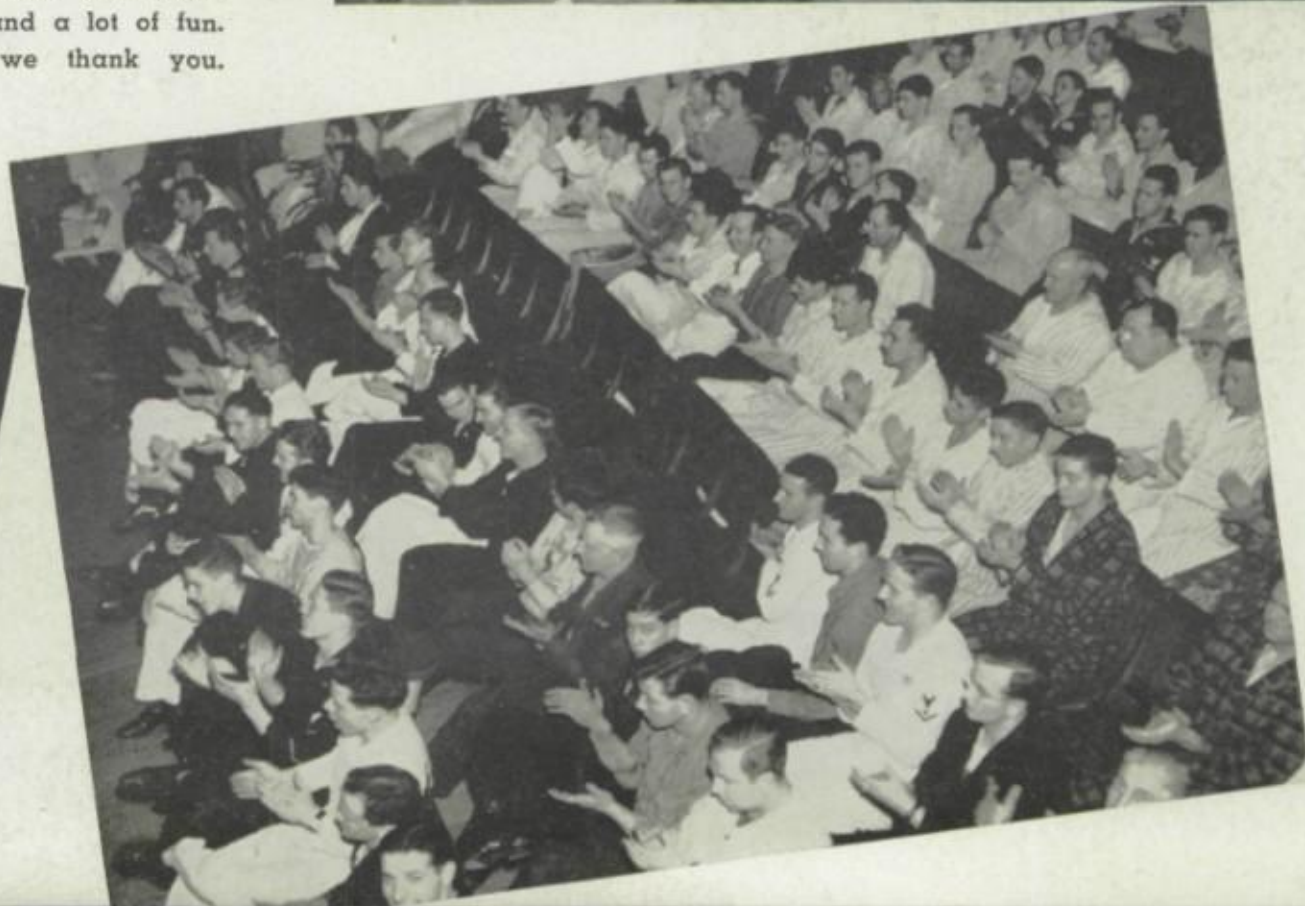

Mr. d'Amelio conducts the orchestra as Uncle Sam's men relax and enjoy the music. Musicians add their talent to that of the soldiers in picking out records for the juke box. Who are they, girls? Soldiers complain about the Military Police, but these youthful beauties seem to be very much impressed.

NAVAL HOSPITAL

The sailors in sick bay at Navy Yard forget their troubles while enjoying the concert. "Did you enjoy the band?" That is probably what Monsignor Bonner is asking Lieutenant McMann, Chaplain at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. All in all, it was a delightful affair. Music, song, laughter, and youth make any occasion a great success and a lot of fun. In the name of the servicemen, we thank you.

FASHIONS FOR VICTORY

With the clothing situation becoming more of a problem as the war continues, our clothing students set the pace and introduce styles that the thrifty and chic Hallahanite will follow.
